Scranton Woos GM Executives

DETROIT (AP) — Gov. William Scranton of Pennsylvania met Wednesday with General Motors Corp., executives in charge of plant planning to discuss what he called "the improved economic climate of Pennsylvania."

Scranton had a 30-minute staff meeting with Wallace E. Wilson, vice president of manufacturing staff of GM to suggest what the governor described as advantages GM would find by diverting some of its future expansion to Pennsylvania.

Britain, U.S. Hurry Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—A high State Department official hurried to London Wednesday night for urgent consultations with the British on the Southeast Asia situation.

This was disclosed by the State Department with announcement that William P. Bundy, assistant secretary for Far Eastern affairs, had left by military jetliner for London.

Press officer Richard I. Phillips declined to spell out the specific matters which Bundy will take up with British Foreign Office officials in talks expected to last several days.

$58 Million Investment

WASHINGTON (AP)—American Telephone & Telegraph Co. is investing $58 million, it was disclosed Wednesday, in the infant Communications Satellite Corp., called COMSAT.

COMSAT filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission an amended prospectus covering its first stock issue—10 million shares at $20 a share, or $200 million—to finance a commercial satellite system for global telephone and television transmission.

The statement revealed that 163 big and small communications firms oversubscribed the $100-million first installment offering by 27 per cent. This first half of the stock was available only to the industry.

Steel Predicts Robust Economy

NEW YORK (AP)—Steel industry leaders foresaw Wednesday a robust economy for many months ahead and record high—or near record—steel production for 1964.

Only possible labor trouble in the fast-stepping auto industry, biggest consumer of steel, and encroachment of foreign steel in U.S. markets cast possible shadows on the future, most said. Wage negotiations in the auto industry are slated this summer.

Ted Collins Dies At 64

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Ted Collins, who wanted to be a physician but instead earned a fortune as singer Kate Smith's manager and a radio-TV personality, died Wednesday in Miss Smith's presence.

Collins, 64, collapsed as the 55-year-old Miss Smith was parking her automobile after driving him to the office of Dr. George Hart. He died in the office of a heart attack, the doctor said.

Steel, Drugs Rally On Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Rallies by steels and by drugs involved in birth control pills helped cushion another stock market decline Wednesday, the third straight loss. Trading was moderate.

The late recovery, on more active trading, pulled the Dow Jones industrial average from an early afternoon decline of 3.41 to a closing loss of only .98 at 817.94.

Volume was a sub-average 4.47 million shares compared with 4.3 million Tuesday.

Political Pot Boils In Cal.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two high-powered campaigns crossed trails Wednesday as Sen. Barry Goldwater and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller battled for the undecided bloc in vote rich Southern California.

Each was predicting victory in California's GOP presidential primary Tuesday. Each interpreted views of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower as favoring his candidacy.

Lodge Support

Support for Rockefeller came Wednesday from George Lodge, son of Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, who at a news conference urged Lodge supporters to vote for Rockefeller. He said Rockefeller holds views closest to those described by Eisenhower's plea for "forward cooking" Republicanism.

The two contenders didn't meet, but their followers mingled in crowded hotel hallways like crisscrossing comet tails. Both staffs were at the Ambassador Hotel, as was Goldwater. A possible face-to-face confrontation was avoided when Rockefeller spent the night at a friend' home.

Meet Campaignees

Each candidate met with taped television shows for use during the final days of struggle for California crucial 86 convention votes.

According to various polls, between 20 and 40 per cent of the registered Republicans still say they haven't made up their minds between the only two men on the GOP primary ballot.

It was to these the candidates addressed themselves — each predicting victory, each telling their own campaign forces why the opposite man can't win.

Goldwater told 300 workers at a Coconut Grove breakfast: "I am the only serious candidate. The opposition can argue all they want. They can't go any place in the convention is July."

Rockefeller told women workers at Warner Bros. studio in Burbank that the American people shouldn't have to choose in November between a Democratic administration and Goldwater.

Big Question Now: After Nehru, Who?

NEW DELHI, India (AP)—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, a quick-tempered aristocrat known to the world as "Mr. India," died of a heart attack Wednesday and left this grief-stricken nation in a leadership vacuum. He was 74.

The senior member of Nehru's Cabinet, Home Minister Gulzari Lal Nanda, was quickly sworn in as acting prime minister and all his ministerial colleagues agreed to stay on in a caretaker government. But the transition—smooth as it was—left unanswered the question: "After Nehru, who??"

Big Question

That question, asked for years but never answered by Nehru, will be resolved conclusively only when the ruling Congress party picks a man to succeed Nehru.

The party's choice will be asked by President Sarvepalli Radhakrishnan to form a permanent government.

Handicapped since Jan. 7 by a paralytic stroke, Nehru had refused to say who he believed should succeed him.

Nehru wes the idol of India's hungry millions and a leader of the world's nonaligned, the neutralists.

Indians Weep

Indians wept at the loss of the man who had run India throughout its 17 years of independence. Expressions of mourning poured in from statesmen abroad.

Members of Parliament sobbed at the announcement by Steel Minister C. Subrahaniam: "The prime minister is no more. Life is out. The light is out."

President Johnson said the world has lost a leader who served all humanity in "fearless pursuit of a world free from war." He sent Secretary of State Dean Rusk from Washington to represent the United States at the funeral Thursday.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev called Nehru "an outstanding statesman, a man of great intellect and a big heart" who worked with all his energy for the cause of peace. He dispatched a deputy premier, Alexei Kosygin, as the Soviet representative.

In keeping with Indian custom, officials drew up a schedule calling for funeral rites within 24 hours. The body was to be carried in state through the streets of the capital starting at 1 p.m. Thursday.

Cremated

Nehru will be cremated near the spot where Mohandas K. Gandhi, his chief in years of campaigning for independence from Britain, was cremated after he was assassinated in 1948.

Nanda inherits the problems of Indian poverty and illiteracy and old quarrels with Moslem Pakistan and Red China that persistently troubled Nehru's administration.

Nehru was stricken in a second-floor bedroom at his official residence shortly after arising as usual at 6:25 a.m. His only child, Mrs. Indira Gandhi, and physicians who had kept constant watch over him were on hand.

He lapsed into unconsciousness and, despite desperate efforts by a team of heart specialists, slid into a decline that ended in death at 2 p.m.

A self-styled agnostic, Nehru was born and reared a Brahmin, the highest of the high in the Hindu religion.

But it was the poor of New Delhi, the untouchables and other low castes for whom he had labored unceasingly, who formed the bulk of the weeping, praying crowd that gathered before the official residence where he died.

Project 70 Okay Hinges On Bi-Partisan Backing

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate set the stage Wednesday for a showdown next week on enabling legislation for Project 70 with the administration confident of passage despite rumblings of opposition.

The long-delayed bill, spelling out guidelines for the $70 million "open space" program, finally reached the floor after more than three months in the Senate Forests and Waters Committee.

Administration Pleased

Administration sources said thay had no objections to the six major revisions written into the bill by the committee.

"But I think it will take bipartisan support to pass it," an aide to the governor said.

Sen. Z. H. Confair, R-Lycoming, chairman of the committee, confirmed that "there was opposition from both sides of the aisle."

The Senate also acted on $22.1 million in special appropriations bills and approved the administration's plan for setting up nursing facilities at state institutions for aged mental patients no longer requiring psychiatric care.

Senate Meets Today

The Senate meets Thursday to clean up remaining appropriations before tackling Project 70 and the giant $1.069 billion general fund bill.

The House is in recess until June 8.

Although the Project 70 concept was approved in a special referendum last fall, some 40 to 45 rural counties voted against it.

A number of senators from these areas already have indicated they want to take a long look at the amended bill before casting their votes.

Amendments

Major amendments written into the bill would:

—Require the state to pay in-lieu-of-taxes to local governments for land acquired under the provisions of Project 70 until assessments on adjoining properties have increased sufficiently to wipe out that direct tax loss. This provision is expected to cost the state in excess of $500,000 a year. An additional 20 cents per acre also would be paid by the state on such lands.

—Require the state to provide a substitute right-of-way for public utility facilities disrupted by the land acquisition program.

—Allow the state to acquire land for state parks in all counties—urban and rural—provided approval is received from local governments, county common pleas court and the state planning board.

—Give the State Planning Board the last word on all proposed land purchases.

—Require the state to provide alternate routes for affected rural roads.

—Permit mineral exploitation such as the drilling and storage of gas and oil on land taken over for parks on approval from the Department of Forests and Waters.

Under the enabling act, $40 million of the $70 million bond issue is earmarked for land acquisition in 43 urban counties, $20 million would go as matching grants for local parks; and $10 million would be used for new hunting and fishing areas.

The Senate also expects to start action next week on the general fund bill now under study in the Appropriations Committee.

GOP Cool To Man On Moon By '70

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Republicans Citizens Committee urged Wednesday that the United States abandon its goal of putting a man on the moon by 1970 and adopt a "more orderly and moderately paced" space program.

The committee's Critical Issues Council, headed by Dr. Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, said a later target date would result in less waste in money and skilled manpower. Also, it said, this would avoid unnecessary risk to the scientific prestige America already has gained in space.

The council's statement, calling for a program geared closer to research than to haste, said: "We see no evidence that urgent defense objectives warrant a crash program or that a meeting of deadlines such as 1970 serves any significant national objectives."

The council urged further negotiations with other nations for cooperation in space exploration, saying: "The exploration of our universe is a goal too vast, too hazardous, too costly and too important to all mankind to be financed and conducted by one country alone, and least of all in an atmosphere of unfriendly competition."

Tocks 'Key Project' House Unit Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposed Tocks Island reservoir in Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey "is the key project in the development of the water resources of the Delaware River Basin," the Army Engineers told a House appropriations subcommittee in asking an additional $450,000 for planning in the year starting July 1.

"Tocks Island reservoir will control virtually half the Delaware river basin runoff above Trenton, N.J.," the engineers said in a statement submitted to the subcommittee at a closed hearing, the transcript of which was made public Wednesday.

"There is an urgent need for relief from flood damages at important centers such as Easton, Riegelsville, New Hope and Yardley, Pa., and Belvidere, Phillipsburg, Trenton and Burlington, N.J."

In addition to flood control, the project is designed to provide pollution control, water supplies, hydroelectric power and recreation. The proposed dam, on the Delaware river near Stroudsburg, Pa., would create a 16,000-acre lake extending 37 miles to Port Jervis, N.Y., according to the plans.

"The economic impact of the project will be important," the engineers' statement said. "Recreation development will stimulate businesses related to tourism and recreation; and improved water supply and stream quality will improve the economic climate for industrial development."

The record of the hearing showed no discussion of the project, only the submission of the statement. Whether the planning money will be included in the public works appropriation bill won't be known until the bill is sent to the house by the full committee.

Acute Problems Face New Leader

MOSCOW (AP)—The time of trouble is rushing fast upon India, and he seemed to know it would.

Jawaharlal Nehru said in answer to a question some months ago: "There will never be time for anyone else to create the position that I have had in India. The years of fighting the British for Indian independence, and then the beginning of freedom, created a place with the people that future leaders will not have time to make."

It was a quiet, almost humble expression of the fact that no one can replace Nehru, one of India's leaders for four decades and its only prime minister from independence in 1947 until his death Wednesday.

Yet the governing of India's 462 million people, under a system that Nehru made democratic in form but paternalistic in fact, must go on with a new prime minister.

He will inherit massive problems, problems that Nehru could never solve:

Surging overpopulation, sluggish economic improvement for the impoverished masses, explosively-armed hatred on most of India's borders.

The man who temporarily, at least, will try to cope with the problems, Gulzari Lal Nanda, is an exact antithesis of Nehru.

Nanda consults his astrologer regularly, believes in the ancient Hindu form of medicine rather than modern science, and generally represents the kind of India that Nehru sought to destroy through modernization.

Nehru's first stroke in January found Home Minister Nanda the senior member of the Cabinet. But senior leaders of Nehru's Congress party insured that another man was called into the picture.

That man, Lal Bahadur Shastri, could now be chosen by the party to become permanent prime minister, but Nanda will try hard to hang onto the job. A power struggle is in prospect.

Nehru's death will create a turmoil on the Indian political scene that will bring out many of the worst aspects of the country that Nehru tried with only limited success to keep hidden: petty regionalism, linguistic confusion, Hindu caste alignments and other weaknesses.

Cardinal Asks Review Of Birth Control Stand

VATICAN CITY (AP)—A Vatican publication and a leading cardinal suggested Wednesday that the Roman Catholic Church may re-examine its stand on birth control in view of medical discoveries concerning birth control pills.

The comments from L'Osservatore Della Domenica and Alfredo Cardinal Ottaviani came amidst growing discussion among Roman Catholics about use of the pills.

While saying that the matter must be examined—possibly by the Vatican Ecumenical Council—Cardinal Ottaviani called for Catholic churchmen to stop discussing the pill question in public.

The cardinal, conservative head of the Vatican Holy Office which guards doctrine and morals, said that only the Pope could make pronouncements "on such grave and debated questions."

In an article titled "About Birth Control Pills," L'Osservatore Della Domenica said oral contraceptive pills now on sale are forbidden to Catholics. The publication ruled out any "revolutionary changes" in the church's position.

But L'Osservatore said that there exists a favorable attiude among some moralists toward development of pills to make ovulation predictable.

The publication said this attitude does not justify altering church regulations on marriage.

But it added, "It is sufficient, however, to justify the continuation of studies and of experiments in scientific research which could lead to conclusions susceptible of being taken in close and respectful consideration by church moralists for a rethinking of the question."

U. S., Russia Agree To Consular Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—An historic U.S. — Soviet consular treaty providing for quick access to any Americans jailed in the Soviet Union will be signed in Moscow on June 1.

Announcing this Wednesday, President Johnson hailed the pact as a significant step in improving U.S.-Soviet relations. He will submit it to the U.S. Senate for ratification.

Neither the White House for the State Department would release the text. State Department officials said the 25-page document would be made public when it goes to the Senate.

The treaty provides for re-establishing consulates in the two countries. Consuls carry out nondiplomatic duties such as issuing visas and helping businessmen and tourists of their nation.

The new agreement, to be signed by U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko in Moscow, is unprecedented in two ways:

1. It is the first bilateral, or two-country, treaty ever concluded between the United States and the Soviet Union.

2. It stipulates that any visitor jailed in the Soviet Union will have access to his consul within four days—setting a specific time limit.

Secret imprisonment of Americans by the Russians has long been a sore point with Washington.

The consular convention marks another milestone in continuing the improvement in Washington — Moscow relations which began after the 1962 Cuban missile crisis.

But U.S. officials stressed there must be much more improvement before the cold war really unfreezes. They noted major danger areas still exist, including Kremlin links with Cuba and Soviet endorsement of aggressive Red moves in Southeast Asia.

The consular convention climaxes 31 years of on-and-off attempts at such a treaty. They began right after President Franklin D. Roosevelt recognized the Soviet Union in 1933. He exchanged letters with Foreign Minister Maxim Litvinov providing for a consular accord.

Rights Bill Snubbed In Talkathon

WASHINGTON (AP)—Before the Senate Wednesday the civil rights bill was as it has been for 64 meeting days before—but the subject hardly came up for 4½ hours after a quorum gathered. The senators talked on a variety of other things.

Even so, few of them stayed to listen to what was said about anything. And some already had left town for the Memorial Day weekend recess, although it doesn't start officially until Thursday evening.

The only one who made a speech about civil rights was Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La., who said the bipartisan leadership substitute bill is aimed "at the South—and the South only." That's the same claim made by other Southern foes of the measure when the compromise was introduced Tuesday.

The Senate quit early, at 5:15 p.m., after a 5 -hour session, until Thursday.

The Senate could keep that deserted look until steps are taken to get some showdown voting started. That could come first on the jury trial questions.

Blatt Leads; Vote Hearings Ordered

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Supreme Court Wednesday ordered hearings for 540 contested absentee ballots cast in Philadelphia in the Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate.

In so doing, the high tribunal overruled an earlier Philadelphia Common Pleas Court decision that it was not necessary for the elections board to hold a hearing on the challenges.

Challenged absentee ballots in Philadelphia and Lackawanna counties apparently hold the key to the primary race between Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the Supreme Court and Genevieve Blatt.

Miss Blatt, the state secretary of internal affairs who made an independent bid for the nomination, leads Musmanno by 791 votes out of more than 920,000 cast.

In addition to the 540 ballots challenged in Philadelphia, 422 also are being contested in Lackawanna County.

The high court ruled Wednesday in its order::

"There is no requirement in the election code that a challenge to an absentee ballot be supported at the time of challenge, or prior to a hearing, by an affodavit or memorandum.

"Further, this record (if the case) discloses a sufficient and adequate challenge under the law to require a hearing by the board of elections on the validity of the challenged ballots."

Justice Herbert Cohen did not participate in the ruling. Neither did Musmanno, who is on a leave of absence from the court pending the outcome of the primary.

Musmanno had no comment on the order.

Maurice Osser, head of the county elections board, said if hearings are held on every challenged ballot, "it's going to be a long, tough grind."

Miss Blatt said only that she had expected a ruling of this nature.

A major question, not presented to the court, remains to be answered. That is: How are most of the contested ballots to be found valid or invalid?

Daily Record Takes Holiday Saturday

STROUDSBURG — The Daily Record will not publish an edition Saturday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Deadline for advertising copy will be today at 4 p.m. for Monday's newspaper and Friday at noon for Tuesday's newspaper.

Freeman Keeps Speaking Date 24 Hours Early

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman threw the Amalgamated Lithographers of America and International Photo Engravers Union joint convention into a tizzy Wednesday.

He appeared 24 hours ahead of schedule to give a talk on how the government is ready to help Americans enjoy new leisure from technological advances.

Convention heads hastily rearranged the program to hear Freeman immediately.

A convention spokesman and the office of Gov. Karl Rolvaag, Democrat, who had arranged to meet Freeman were unable to explain the mixup. No one knew Freeman was in town until he called from the airport.

VP Post Would Be Filled Under Amendment Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposed constitutional amendment designed to keep the office of vice president filled and authorizing him to serve as acting president when necessary took a first step through Congress Wednesday.

It was approved unanimously by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee and sent to the full committee. The chairman of the full committee, Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., said he favors the plan and expects his group will send it on to the Senate.

The amendment would permit a president to select a vice president, subject to majority approval by Congress, when a vacancy occurs in the vice presidency.

It also provides that if a president becomes disabled, his authority will be exercised temporarily by the vice president as acting president.

The president would resume the exercise of his duties and powers on recovery.

In case of a dispute between the president and vice president or the president and a majority of the Cabinet as to whether the chief executive were disabled or recovered, the issue would be decided by a two-thirds majority of Congress.

Saying this nation must always have a presidential understudy, Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., chief sponsor of the proposed amendment, said: "In these times when whole armies can be moved halfway around the world in a matter of hours and when civilization as we know it can be destroyed in a matter of minutes, the American people must be assured that there is always a strong hand on the tiller and that crucial decisions are made unimpeded by physical or mental disability."

Bayh said he hopes the plan will receive the necessary two-thirds Senate approval before this session ends. The proposal then must be approved by a two-thirds vote in the House and ratified by three-fourths of the states before it can become effective.

The problem of presidential inability and succession was underscored by President dwight D. Eisenhower's illnesses and by President John F. Kennedy's assassination.

The office of vice president has been vacant since President Johnson succeeded Kennedy last Nov. 22, and will not be filled until the general election this fall.

Next in line of presidential succession now are Speaker of the House John W. McCormack, D-Mass., 72, followed by Sen. Carl Hayden, D-Ariz., temporary president of the Senate, who is 86.

State News Roundup

Scott Hopes For GOP Deadlock

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Wednesday it would be logical for supporters of Gov. William W. Scranton to vote for Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in next Tuesday's California Republican presidential primary.

"Gov. Scranton is more likely to become an announced candidate if a deadlock develops at the Republican convention," Scott told a news conference. "A deadlock is more likely to develop if Rockefeller wins the California primary."

Scott is an avowed supporter of Scranton, Pennsylvania's governor, for the Republican presidential nomination. He said he would expect Scranton to "make some further statements" after the June 2 primary if New York's governor wins the state's 86 delegates in a two-way contest with Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

"I believe it will be short of an announcement," Scott said, "but it might indicate more clearly his availability."

Scott said he discovered "a surprising unanimity of interest in Gov. Scranton as a candidate" in conversations with Republican national committeemen and state chairmen assembled in Washington earlier this week.

Chester Hearing Set June 11

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Human Relations Commission Wednesday set June 11 for an additional day of hearings on charges of what civil rights advocates have termed de facto segregation in Chester.

That would be the sixth day of hearings on the Chester problem which led to street demonstrations there in April.

The commission said the Chester school district will present additional witnesses and evidence at the session.

Murder Trial Begins Monday

WILKES-BARRE (AP)—Trial of Richard Mummey, 14, Ringtown, charged with murder and manslaughter in the death of Clayton Kelshaw, 57, Weatherly, a former house parent at the Kis Lyn Industrial School for boys, has been postponed until Monday.

The trial was scheduled to begin Wednesday but the Luzerne County court rescheduled the trial for Monday to prevent the possibility of keeping the jurors in confinement during the holiday weekend.

Four other boys were named in the same indictment with Mummey, but will be tried separately.

New Post

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Alan L. Emlen, 44, a member of Pennsylvania's professional and occupational licensing boards, is the new chairman of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Republican Finance Committee. He served previously as treasurer of the GOP state committee.

Pickets Halted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Labor Relations Board directed the Building and Construction Trades Council of Delaware, AFL-CIO Wednesday to halt picketing near the premises of the Paul Morrow Co. Inc., New Castle, Del. The order also prohibited the union from trying to force the firm not to do business with Frank Capano or any other person.

Morrow manufactures instrument systems and panels for use by industry.

The NLRB ruled that the picketing and other pressures were unfair labor practices.

Wilcox Gets Nod

WILKES-BARRE (AP) – Gov. Scranton has appointed Thomas E. Wilcox of Wellsboro to be one of the two attorney at law required on the five-man Pennsylvania state Board of Examiners of Public Accountants. His name was sent to the Senate Tuesday for confirmation.

This would hardly be unusual except that, despite the odds against it, Atty. Wilcox becomes the second Thomas Wilcox to be named to the small board.

The other Thomas Wilcox already on the accountants examining board is Thomas S. Wilcox of Forty Fort, a certified public accountant with offices in Wilkes-Barre.

Thomas S. Wilcox was appointed to the board last August and was confirmed by the Senate in December for a four-year term.

Unions Double Dues; Start Fund To Battle Hostile Legislation

PITTSBURGH (AP — The Pennsylvania AFL-CIO nearly doubled the monthly assessment on some 1.6 million members Wednesday and set up a "defense" fund to battle hostile legislation, especially right to work laws.

Both actions were embodied in a resolution that was passed without apparent opposition by some 1,800 delegates to the labor organization's three-day fifth constitutional convention, which closes Thursday.

The increase raised the monthly dues from four cents to seven. It is effective July 1.

Although the General Assembly has given no indication it is ready to adopt a right-to-work law, state labor clearly demonstrated its preoccupation with such a possibility at today's session.

Behind labor's fear are two factors. One is the emergence of a group called Pennsylvanians for Right to Work, headquartered in Harrisburg, which has been increasingly active for the past two years.

The other is what labor feels was a resounding defeat it suffered last winter when the legislature passed Gov. Scranton's bill to restrict unemployment compensation. The Administration sought the bill to repair the financial condition of the Unemployment Compensation Fund.

Labor fought it tooth and nail with a campaign that at one point resulted in a march on the state capital by thousands of workers.

Wednesday's resolution specifically calls for the assessment to be used to promote voter registration, get-out-the-vote activity and continuing political education programs.

However, a preamble to the resolution cited the failure of a special drive to collect enough money during the fight against the Unemployment Compensation Bill and said that "resistance to the quickly developing right-to-work movement in Pennsylvania must proceed on an entirely different basis."

Two other resolutions before the convention also attest to labor's fears. One calls for an investigation of the possibility of full work stoppage if any attempt is made to get right-to-work laws on the books. The other calls for all efforts to defeat right-to-work advocates at election time.

There was no debate on the resolution, which an AFL-CIO spokesman said was surprising since many smaller unions are traditionally against any dues increase.

Instead, representatives of many of the unions spoke briefly in behalf of the increase.

Absentee Ballot Caster Counts

HARRISBURG (AP) — The little man who isn't there has become the man to watch in Pennsylvania politics. He is the absentee ballot caster.

Like the trout fly caster, he seems to spend a lot of time wasting his time. But now and then he hooks into a big one.

The big one this year is the nip and tuck race for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination between Genevieve Blatt, secretary of internal affairs, and Michael A. Musmanno, state Supreme Court justice.

Pennsylvania's absentee ballot law is difficult to read.

It seems to have had its origins in 1949 state constitutional amendment – the so-called GI ballot amendment. That change didn't stir much political activity either way because in that year there was almost nobody in the armed forces. Law impementing the amendment allowed servicemen to apply for and cast an absentee ballot.

But the next year the Korean conflict began. Scores of GI ballots came rolling in and, apparently, the politicos began to see gold in the previously shunned absent vote.

In 1957, the voters approved a new constitutional amendment allowing persons to vote who are "unavoidably absent from the state or county of residence... (or) are unable to attend at their proper polling places because of illness or physical disability...."

Note that "illness or physical disability."

Anyhow, the legislature took the constitutional change as a cue to make up an absentee ballot that, for practical purposes, would tend to drive away the legitimate voter, while making it no less difficult for the local organization people.

In a curious oversight, the law does not require an absentee ballot to be mailed. The law merely says it must be "delivered" to the county elections authorities. (You've heard of a delivered vote before, haven't you?).

That means, of course, that there is no postmark to determine whether a physically fit person actually was absent from his polling place. There is no time check or date check.

Now, back to "illness" and "physical disability." That covers a lot of ground. The absentee ballot opened the door to the state hospital vote. It is a safe guess that the hospital vote on April 28 was better than ever before.

But on the credit the absentee ballot has done one very valuable thing—it has pointed up the tremendous importance of the individual vote.

Penn State's Appropriation

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate Appropriations Committee added $125,000 this week to the proposed $25.1 million appropriation for Pennsylvania State University in fiscal 1964-65.

At the same time it restored $200,000 stripped by the House from the appropriation for the University of Pennsylvania, including $100,000 for maintenance of the university museum.

The amendments were included in a package of $35.5 million in non-preferred money bills for state aided colleges and institutions.

Flag Design Stirs Up Canada

OTTAWA, Canada (AP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson laid before Parliament on Wednesday his controversial design for a new national flag bearing the maple leaf emblem of Canada. Opposition Conservatives promised a fight to the finish.

Pearson has staked the life of his Liberal party government on the issue. While his party lacks a majority in the House of Commons, it appeared he had the support of smaller opposition parties and even some Conservatives.

Derisively calling the new design "Pearson's Pennant," the Conservative majority put on an outward show of confidence. A general election would follow if Pearson is beaten in the House of Commons on the flag issue.

The prime minister introduced two resolutions, one on the flag, the other to make "O Canada" the national anthem with "God Save the Queen" the royal anthem for Canada.

The design Pearson showed to House members has three red maple leaves on a single stem in a field of white with vertical blue bands on the flag's edges.

Behind the idea of a new flag is Pearson's desire to placate the French-speaking minority, who demanded independence or a greater share of jobs for those of French descent.

The current national flag is British in character. A red, white and blue Union Jack occupies the upper left corner on a red field. Centered to the right of the Union Jack is Canada's coat of arms.

Solon Hints At Radar Gap Over Florida

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., said Wednesday he understands that a plane flew from Florida to Cuba and back Monday, and escaped radar detection by flying 100 feet above the water.

He called for a congressional investigation of what he said appears, if the reports are true, to be "an inexcusable gap in the U.S. air defense system."

Rogers gave no source for what he called the reliable reports on which he based his speech in the House. He said the Defense Department told him neither the Navy nor the Air Force had any knowledge of such a flight, and the Federal Aviation Agency had no flight plan for it.

The Pompano Beach, Fla., Sun-Sentinel, in a copyrighted story Tuesday, quoted a member of a Cuban exile organization as saying a plane had dropped supplies including a complete field hospital unit to anti-Castro guerrillas in Cuba.

The paper quoted Manuel Fernandez of the 30th of November Movement as saying the plane took off from south Florida, penetrated Cuban defense radar to drop the supplies, then headed for Santiago de Cuba and dropped 150,000 leaflets.

The 30th of November Movement issued a statement in Miami Wednesday confirming portions of that report but saying the plane "operated from a secret Caribbean base."

Successor For Boehm Sought

HARRISBURG (AP)—A Pittsburgh educator was hired Monday to assist a special committee in studying the qualifications of candidates for the office of state superintendent of public instruction.

He is Dr. Paul H. Masoner, dean of the school of education at the University of Pittsburgh.

Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer, chairman of the advisory committee, said Masoner would be paid "on a consulting basis."

Gov. Scranton appointed the advisory committee to come up with a recommendation on a successor to Dr. Charles H. Boehm, who resigned earlier this month to become a U.S. education consultant in Columbia.

Arms Shipments Concern U. S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Johnson administration is reported to be concerned over the likely delivery of Soviet heavy armament to the government of President Makarios of Cyprus.

This was acknowledged this week by administration informants, who were asked to comment on reports from diplomatic sources that the Makarios government is negotiating with Moscow for the delivery of fighter planes, armed vehicles, artillery pieces, antiaircraft guns, and small naval craft.

The negotiations are understood to have been initiated in Nicosia through the Soviet Embassy in the Cyprus capital. The embassy reportedly had told Makarios the Soviet Union is willing to supply him with weapons.

Vocational Opportunity

A wonderful opportunity for Monroe County to build and operate an area vocational-technical school was explained to the county school board Tuesday.

The five-man board representing all county school districts is required by Act. 463 of the 1963 state legislature to draw up a plan for a vocational education by January, 1965.

The board took its first step toward that goal when it voted Tuesday to formally define Monroe County as a vocational school attendance area.

That decision can be amended later if Pike County or Wayne County or individual school districts in any neighboring county want to join the Monroe County vocational school area.

The opportunity explained to the county school board by Harold Albright, assistant state supervisor of vocational education for the Pennsylvania Department of Instruction, was one of 75 per cent federal and state aid for construction of a county vocational school.

All or some of the school districts within the county can band together to form a vocational school. Albright said he would be talking to each school board in the county to explain the plan and its advantages.

At some later date, the county school board may call a county school directors' convention to vote on the proposal. Individual districts which want to establish a vocational school may do so under procedures established in the 1963 law.

The financial opportunity explained by Albright is 50 per cent state aid for construction of an area vocational school and 25 per cent federal aid.

He estimated that such a school building would cost $1 million or less, leaving one quarter or $250,000 to be paid by county taxpayers.

While we doubt that such a school can be built and equipped for $1 million, the state and federal aid available makes the plan very attractive. State aid for operating expenses follows the construction money.

The educational opportunity given Monroe County is equally important.

About 65 per cent of the 9,500 school students in Monroe County do not go on to college.

Most of these students would profit by the opportunity to get concentrated training for jobs available in this area. The vocational school must offer eight or ten courses to get started. They would be chosen to fit area students for area job opportunities.

As C. W. Shaffer, president of the Industrial Management Club of Monroe County, said in a Daily Record series of articles last November on vocational education in Monroe County:

"With the new highway program that is surrounding us, this area has the opportunity to attract new industry. We in Monroe County should be concerned about creating a labor pool of skilled workers that industries thinking about relocating in Monroe County can draw from."

We need a vocational training program for industrial growth as well as to better educate our young people for life.

The General's Bathroom

The commanding general's bathroom in new headquarters of the Army Mobility Command at Warren, Michigan, was to have silk wallpaper, a counter-top vanity, king-size mirror and glass shower doors.

But the House Appropriations Committee took exception. It said in measured language that these "expensive modifications" were "an excellent example of the extent to which excessive costs can be incurred in the absence of proper control and supervision."

The committee said the $94,500 alterations would have expanded the general's office from the original design of 420 square feet, while the office of the Secretary of the Army in the Pentagon is a mere 600 square feet.

The committee considering the annual military construction requests called these unusually frivolous and wasteful expenditures in what is traditionally considered a "pork barrel" bill.

The committee, catching the economy mood of the White House, also turned down requests for $239,000 to build a bowling alley at Brunswick, Maine, and $278,000 for another bowling alley on Okinawa.

The committee said it would only approve "clearly essential" expenditures.

It is a heartening development for a Congressional committee to chop out unnecessary spending like this. We hope they keep up the good work.

Comment Of The Day

"This is not a partisan dinner. It is not a political affair. It is open to anyone who wants to contribute to the Democratic party."

—Lyndon B. Johnson speaking at a $100-a-plate dinner in Washington.

Walter Lippmann

LBJ--Politician

By Walter Lippmann

President Johnson is having so much political success that the ordinary rules of politics are not working. For the time being they are suspended. For this election, it now begins to appear, the old established ruling powers in the Republican Party — the banking, industrial and publishing magnates in the large metropolitan centers — are either in favor of the election of President Johnson or at least are not strongly opposed to it. This is a new development in the history of American politics, and particularly in the experience of the Democratic Party since the disaster at the end of the first world war.

The Democratic revival, which began during the Great Depression after 1929, was the work of Franklin Roosevelt. He put together a mighty coalition of the disinherited: the poor, the distressed farmers, labor, the Negroes, the new ethnic minorities.

This Roosevelt coalition held together during the Truman period and persisted in spite of the Eisenhower landslides. The coalition was revived by John F. Kennedy. But for more than 30 years there has been a deep alienation between the Democratic Party and the American business community.

Now for the first time, under President Johnson, there is more than a flirtation with individual Republicans. Indeed, there is something like an affair between the old established American business leaders and the Johnson administration. This was never possible under Roosevelt, Truman and Kennedy.

This affair, which cannot be mistaken for a marriage, manifests itself, of course, in the friendliness of the great publishers and heads of the communications media. Certainly this is a most important contribution to the high Johnson ratings in the polls. But the afair between the Republicans and the Democrats is manifest also in the internal politics of the Republican Party.

That party is rent by a fierce struggle for the control of its machinery. It is a struggle in which Sen. Barry Goldwater is leading a movement to wrest control of the Republican Party from the old established leaders in the metropolitan centers from New York to San Francisco. An interesting and important aspect of this struggle is the dislike and perhaps jealousy of new wealth for old wealth, which Senator Goldwater and his followers hardly try to conceal.

The polls show dramatically that the rank and file of the Republican voters do not want Senator Goldwater. But the critical fact is that the leaders of the Republican Party are so much resigned to a Johnson victory that they have not taken an active part in the internal struggle of the Republican Party. They have every interest in seeing to it that Senator Goldwater does not get control of the party for the next four years. But the old established Republicans have abstained from this struggle for control, and it would seem that they prefer not to be bruised and bloodied over the right to choose the loser in November.

If we ask ourselves why President Johnson is the first Democratic President to make a kind of peace with the business community, it is only part of the answer to say that he is an extraordinarily skillful politician. He is indeed extraordinarily skillful. But in a democracy this means, we must remember, not only that he understands and knows how to play upon the hopes and fears of his supporters and his opponents.

In his case, it means also that he and, we should add, his wife have an apparently inexhaustible gift of sympathy. They seem to be able to put themselves inside the skins of other people and to see themselves as others see them. I think this imaginative reach is the inner Johnson secret. It is by this gift that he keeps his friends and disarms his opponents.

There is also an objective reason why he is able to go so much further than any other President in this generation to rally a huge majority. It is that in an advanced economy like ours we are now living in a time when the technological and fiscal revolution can liberate us from the ancient quarrel between the haves and the have-nots. There are no lingering echoes of that old quarrel in the Johnson utterances.

President Johnson is acting on the realization that in the new age that is coming upon us there is open the possibility of an enormous increase in the production of wealth. And therefore, insofar as money can solve the problem of poverty or the other problems of modern society, the money can be found by adding to the production of wealth. It does not have to be taken away from those who already have wealth.

Here in the United States, as in most of Western Europe, this is the post-Marxian age. That is why President Johnson is able to wage a war against poverty and at the same time win so much confidence among the well-to-do.

The Pennsylvania Story

Goddard Hits Fees

By Mason Denison

EDITOR'S NOTE: The question of charging admission to Pennsylvania's State Parks long has been argued. They're free now. Secretary of Forests and Waters Maurice K. Goddard strongly feels they should remain free; the State Chamber of Commerce on the other hand feels an admission fee should be charged. Secretary Goddard's feelings are expressed below.)

By Maurice K. Goddard
Secretary
Forests and Waters

HARRISBURG — From the latter 1930's on the federal parks had much larger deficits, percentagewise, than this state has ever had to contend with.

In 1947, then - Secretary of the Interior Julius Krug reported that some parks in the national system had income exceeding expenditure, but the system as a whole had revenues totalling only about one-ninth of appropriations. And expenditures had been made by Krug's predecessor, Harold L. Ickes.

In 1959, the federal park system had appropriations of $79,692,600 and receipts of $5,688,138; or about one-fourteenth of appropriations.

Presently, the Pennsylvania park system returns about 30 per cent of its operating and maintenance costs through special use fees, i.e., swimming, boating, concessions and many other items.

This may be afield from parks, but last year our department also returned to the General Fund, along with the monies mentioned above, over $1 million from timber products sales from forest lands in the state. As you can see, we endeavor as much as possible to "pay our own way."

In his book, "The State Parks," published in 1962, Tilden remarks, "I cannot conceive that state parks, viewed as whole systems, could ever pay their own way; or that they should be expected to do so."

A study of the Park and Recreation Problem in the U.S., by the National Park Service in 1941, reported:

"It is well to recognize that no park system has ever been made self - supporting through a system of fees and charges and a determined effort in this direction inevitably will restrict the service of the park agency and diminish the public benefits which accrue from it."

Continuing, this same report stated: Fee collection "policies not only seriously limit the service rendered to the public and especially to those most in need of the service, but they are contrary to the purpose for which these agencies were established, and therefore, endanger future public financing. The impression is thereby created among legislators and the public that the agency is not performing an essential public service, but one which is proprietary in character and, therefore, is entitled to less and less support from public taxation."

These statements make two points I'd like to follow up before I close.

Number one, delegating a part of our time and authority to fee collection will, indeed, diminish public benefits and restrict services. We could not possibly do a thorough job in this respect without additional personnel. Our present staff has more than enough to do now constantly striving to improve the facilities we already have, and, such additional people may hamper rather than help since no clear-cut definition of their duties could be obtained for quite some time.

Number two, we would limit the service; not from our own desire to do so, but from the necessity in trying to increase our duties.

I have been accused of using the following, "limit the service rendered to the public and especially those most in need of the service" as a rather stock phrase. Despite how it sounds, I truly mean it. The majority of those using the parks have limited budgets and incomes and to force these people — our most habitual visitors — to cut deeper into their already small funds it can prove to be a matter of no small importance.

Socially, then, I think it important to keep the status quo on the entrance to parks, and I know for certain, Governor William Scranton believes the same.

Eye Quicker Than Query

Cool your heels around one of Paul Patten's armless captain's chairs at Glen Brook Country Club and wait for the story that never comes.

That's what this reporter did the other day at the Stroudsburg suburban site for an hour or two before Patten quietly slipped away.

Don't get us wrong, Patten will talk. However, it's never on the subject first advanced by the questioner.

We had heard Glen Brook had changed a lot the past few years. In fact, Gene Tunney, the retired heavyweight boxing champ, reportedly will challenge Cassius Clay if he knew "he never had it so good today" in comparison to his training stint there in 1926.

To get back to Patten, we asked about the new golf shop. "Excuse me," he said, but I have two calls from Slippery Rock and Pittsburgh waiting."

Bob Ross, the landscaper from Paradise Twp. popped in and we remarked, "That's quite a golf shop adorning the course, isn't it?"

Patten came back to the clubhouse, looked at me but turned toward Ross. "Bob (Ross, that is) how many cars can we get into that new parking lot?"

We had to break this up so we chimed in, "Make it a 100. That's a nice round figure."

Patten didn't bat an eye, nor did Ross turn his doubled peepers toward us. "What's new, Clark," Patten out of a clear, varnished room said.

"How many new motel units have you added this year," we countered.

Paul unwrapped his legs from the captain's gams and called to Charley Potcher and Charley Houston — two guys ready to tee off. "How you hitting 'em?"

Someone shouted across the room, "How many acres have you got here, Paul?"

"I think it's 264. Something like that," Patten answered.

"Gosh, I never see you around anymore, Clark," Patten laughed. "What's new at the paper."

With that he moved away to fix an electric plug, mow a green, and steam up some coffee.

"Nothing," we shouted at the fleeing figure. "Nothing except this place sure is growing up. At least that's what my eyes tell me.

Markin Time

Get up one more time than you fall,
And be determined to excell.
Remember nothing is so small,
But it will pay to do it well.

Unique Dinner

Paul Scott

WASHINGTON — President Johnson is undertaking a new personal appeal to business and labor to hold the line on wages and prices.

This latest plea will be made at an unusual gathering — a joint dinner for some 80 or 90 business and union executives at the White House, followed by Cabinet briefings and discussions.

Invitations to this unique management - labor get-together under direct presidential auspices are going out this week.

This dinner is a follow-up on two others the President already has held — separate black - tie affairs for businessmen and laborites. At each the President urgently stressed the crucial necessity for averting strikes and increases in wages and prices.

Before deciding on the joint dinner, the President discussed the matter with auto - maker Henry Ford and AFL - CIO President George Meany. Both voiced hearty approval.

Indicative of the importance the President attaches to this exceptional affair is that it is being arranged by Clifton Carter, his top political lieutenant.

Also, Defense Secretary McNamara, former head of Ford Motor Co., and at the President's behest working quietly to forestall an atuo strike, is in charge of the briefings by Cabinet members and other key officials.

A special report on the national economy and outlook will be presented by Walter Heller, head of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

More Politics — A spectacular publicity splash is slated by the Democratic $1,000-a-member "President's Club."

It will take the form of a 24 - page tabloid - sized color supplement that will be part of the Sunday, June 14, editions of 14 big - city newspapers in various parts of the country.

This unique political ad, titled "Mr. President: The Office and the Man", is being paid for by the "President's Club." Democratic chiefs are uncommunicative about the cost, but newspaper sources estimate it at "several hundred thousand dollars'.

The supplement was prepared by a Washington advertising firm, and personally approved by President Johnson.

At this week's big fund-raising combination dinner and gala in Washington, more than 800 $1,000-a - plate tickets were sold for the "President's Club" dinner — at which the President and Mrs. Johnson were the stellar guests. For a similar affair in New York Thursday night, more than 1,000 "President's Club" tickets at $1,000 a plate have been sold.

Mrs. Johnson's enthusiastic participation in these affairs is a significant portent of things to come.

The First Lady will play a leading role in the fall election, and is busily preparing for that. She is being briefed by selected authorities and experts on a wide range of domestic and foreign subjects.

On international matters, Mrs. Johnson already has had briefings by McGeorge Bundy, White House special assistant in this field. He is also arranging for other specialists in foreign afairs and intelligence to meet with her.

Mrs. Johnson is evincing particular interest in the Sino-Russian fued and its effect on critical areas throughout the world.

"Mediterranean Cuba" — Russia is secretly arming leftist - ruled Algeria to the teeth.

President Ben Bella's army is now known to have around 150 latest-model Soviet tanks, several squadrons of MIG-21 jet fighters, and a large number of heavy field guns and mortars. Russian technicians and specialists are training Algerians in the use of this equipment.

At the huge May Day celebration in Moscow, Ben Bella was the top foreign guest, filling the role taken by Fidel Castro last year. Like the Cuban dictator, Ben Bella was presented a high Soviet decoration.

Particularly disturbing to NATO authorities is the strong possibility that Algeria may acquire SA-2 high - level anti - aircraft missiles.

Dear Abby

You Were Wrong

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday I received a telephone call from a girl asking me to her prom. I had not even seen this girl in FOUR years, and to tell you the truth, it is not long enough. I never liked her because she was loud and forward, and besides, she used to stare at me in eighth grade, which gave my friends plenty to kid me about. I told her I couldn't take her to the prom because I had to work that night, which was true. After I hung up my mother askeo me who the girl was. I told her in a nice way that it was none of her business, which it wasn't. Do you see anything wrong with that?

GROUNDED

Dear Grounded: Yes. There is no "nice" way to tell one's mother that something is none of her business. Even if it isn't.

DEAR ABBY: I myself would not inform a teacher when others are cheating. Any teacher who cares about what goes on in her classroom can catch cheaters with little effort. Cheating in school is dishonest, of course, but it is not to be compared with robbery, assault or murder. When one witnesses harm or violence done to another, he has a moral obligation to report the offender immediately. When one cheats in an examination, he is only cheating himself and damaging his own character and reputation. If he attempts to cash in on his ill-gotten marks, he will only prove to others that his fine record was not earned because he will not know his subject. Don't back down, Abby; I think you were right.

FORTY-ONE YEARS ON THE BENCH"

DEAR ABBY: I do not believe that very young children should "tattle" on one another for the slightest little thing. But when a student sees another student cheating during an examination, I think it is his duty to inform the teached. Today the classrooms are so crowded, especially in the colleges and universities, we are told that students may get away with cheating, unnoticed. How would YOU like to lie down on an operating table and entrust your life to a surgeon who had cheated his way through medical school?

D. N. C.
(A Baltimore M. D.)

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from "CURIOUS," who asked, "What makes a 57-year - old man suddenly take an interest in clothes and grooming" and you replied, "A WOMAN," I laughed out loud. I have watched my 55-year-old husband go nuts over clothes. He never owned anything he didn't need because he is a penny pincher. Now it's a black suit, a blue suit, a gray suit and a brown suit. Sport jackets in stripes and checks, and hats to match each suit. He has fancy shirts and monogrammed handkerchief, cuff links and even colonrge! He even uses hair oil to make the few remaining strands of hair lay down on his bald head. The reason?? A married woman young enough to be his daughter. She works in the same office and doesn't know he's alive.

Speaking Of Your Health:

Lifeline Of Unborn Child

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

When a baby is born, the elimination of the afterbirth, or placenta, is generally considered the finish of the birth process.

A great deal of speculation and study about the placenta has revealed some amazing facts about it.

The placenta comes into existence almost the moment pregnancy is established, and increases progressively in size for the entire duration of pregnancy.

Some of its functions are still steeped in mystery. Others are known to scientists and are recognized as providing mutual protection to the mother and the unborn child.

Direct Physical Link

The placenta, attached to the wall of the mother's womb, is the direct physical link between mother and unborn child. The umbilical cord is the lifeline of the child. It connects the baby's navel to the placenta.

Nourishment, vital to the healthy development of the growing child, is obtained through this source.

Food, hormones and immunizing antibodies are transmitted from mother to child by way of the placenta and the umbilical cord.

There is no direct passage of blood between the mother and the unborn child.

Scientists are perplexed by the fact that sometimes the unborn child is not adequately protected by the placenta.

Rightfully, these questions are asked: Why does German measles during pregnancy sometimes affect the baby? Why do some drugs have adverse effects on the child? Why do congenital malformations occur without any apparent cause? Could any of these conditions be attributed to a malfunction of the placenta?

These and hundreds of other problems are being diligently studied by scientists everywhere in an effort to ensure the greater health and safety of the baby and the mother.

The placenta, long considered a remarkable though little understood organ of the body, is now being scrutinized and the study is revealing many fascinating facts.

Medical science is striving to uncover the secrets of the vast and complex processes which go on within the intricate cellular network of the growing placenta.

Needless Fears Of Pregnancy

The birth of a baby represents one of the great emotional experiences in the life of a woman. In our civilization, medical science has achieved magnificent advances in making childbirth a safe and simple process.

Yet, despite all the progress, pregnancy and childbirth are still rife with anxiety and fear for the uninformed.

These columns are designed to relieve your fears about health through a better understanding of your mind and body. All the hopeful new advances in medicine reported here are known to doctors everywhere.

Your individual medical problems should be handled by your own doctor. He knows you best.

Wall Street

When the Dutch settled Manhattan Island they built a wall to protect their settlement from the Indians. The settlement which the Dutch called New Amsterdam, fell in to the hands of the English, who renamed it New York.

After the danger from the Indians had passed, the wall was torn down and a street was built on the site. The street was named Wall Street.

Eventually financial institutions sprang up on Wall Street, and when it could accommodate no more they were built on adjacent street.

Now Wall Street refers not only to the street itself, but also to the financial district of New York.

Trueheart: Misled By Hotel's Promises

STROUDSBURG — Donald Trueheart took the stand yesterday and said he was misled by promises of business before he took over the operation of the restaurant in the American House Hotel.

The testimony came during the fifth session of marathon hearings to decide if an injunction should be granted restraining Trueheart from interfering with the planned construction and renovations at the hotel.

Trueheart said Samuel Monatt expected to buy the Penn-Stroud Hotel and "control the business in this area." Both the American House and the Penn-Stroud are located in the 700 block of Main St.

Trueheart, who described himself as a restauranteur, maintained he was promised a brisk banquet trade at the hotel's restaurant during the time he was negotiating to become the restaurant's operator.

He claims he agreed to operate the restaurant and was given a 28 month oral lease by Monatt, Inc.

In other developments yesterday, Monatt testified about an article in The Daily Record which quoted Edward Katz, Monatt, Inc. president, as saying the firm had given Trueheart a lease.

"I had no specific conversation about a lease with anybody."

"Minor Officer"

Monatt said he did not remember a reporter calling him to verify the quote but said, "I remember saying to somebody Mr. Katz is president and all the information should come from him. I am only a minor officer."

Asked why he did not complain to the paper if the article was inaccurate, Monatt said, "It doesn't do any good to complain to the newspaper. A lot of things are reported that are not right."

He said he was interviewed in his office by James Ottaway, Daily Record editor. "We told him what we were going to do and he reported it that way," Monett said.

Trueheart, under direct examination by his lawyer James R. Marsh, said he first talked to Monatt about running the restaurant during October, 1963.

"Monatt told me I came highly recommended by Vincent Vecchio and many other people who had eaten in our place and he said he wanted to lease the restaurant to me."

Direct Dealings

Trueheart said he had direct dealings at all times with Monatt and "at very few times did Katz (Edward) open his mouth except to agree."

He said he agreed with Monatt the restaurant would be a losing proposition for some time but with the aid of credit Trueheart thought he could put the business on a paying basis.

"They promised to build banquet facilities better than the Penn-Stroud or anyplace in Monroe County," Trueheart said.

He said Monatt promised all the service clubs in the area would hold their meetings in the restaurant, especially the Lions Club. Trueheart said Katz is Lions Club president.

"He (Monatt) told us he would get all the bus companies to stop. He said we could easily get a liquor license. With Mr. Olenick (Walter Olenick, Monatt's attorney) there is no question we could get it," Trueheart testified.

Agreed To Pay $6,000

He said he agreed to pay Monatt, Inc. $6,000 a year—starting on May 1 with $500 a month payments—for the right to run the restaurant.

Trueheart claimed he fed six Monatt, Inc. employees from Jan. 1 until the present trouble started last month. He said this was part of his agreement.

He pointed out he had a long series of disputes with the firm since he took over.

Trueheart said part of the firm's harrassment was to shut off the lights, electricity and gas service at the hotel.

Ray Cornwall, manager of the Citizen's Gas Co., testified his company never turned off the gas service nor did they authorize anyone to do so.

Trueheart, who pays the gas bill, said he has discovered a mangle iron used by Monatt, Inc., to do the hotel's laundry is operated by gas and has been included in his bill.

"The iron has been in operation all the time we have been there. It does all the loundry, including ours which we pay Monatt to do," Trueheart said.

Electrical Workers Near Third Week Of Strike

READING—Electrical workers neared the third week of a strike against Metropolitan Edison. Yesterday efforts to reach a settlement came to a halt. There has been no tentative date set for new meetings.

Spokesmen for the striking International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers said the strike will continue.

The union's District 9 Council informed the company the workers would not return to work until the company makes an offer for the first year of a proposed two-year contract that includes the full cost of employes' Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage.

Negotiations had been conducted in the Berkshire Hotel in Reading.

The IBEM strike went into effect May 15. Previous talks settled some issues, but the disputants still differ on hospitalization insurance coverage.

Walter C. Moser, of Allentown, area commissioner for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, called heated yesterday's session.

The union spokesman said the union was asked to consider a two-year package offer, indicating it would be advantageous. They said the company, however, would not make any change the first year of the pact and would not commit itself to proposals for the second year.

Master Plan Declares Eastburg Hub Of Vital County Assets

(This is the fourth in a series of articles reviewing the comprehensive plan submitted to East Stroudsburg Borough Council by the borough's planning commission.)

By GIL MURRAY
Daily Record Staff Reporter

EAST STROUDSBURG — East Stroudsburg is the industrial, educational, cultural and medical center of Monroe County and adequate planning is a must of the borough is to play its part in a growing county.

The borough's comprehensive plan paints this picture and point out if the needs of the next two decades are to be met radical and farsighted improvements will have to be carried out.

To streamline the borough and make it attractive for future development the plan maintains East Stroudsburg residents and business leaders must back such necessary land use measures as zoning, planning and both residential and industrial urban renewal projects.

The profession planning consultants, who drew up the comprehensive plan, indicated that in the next 20 years heavy demands will be made on the borough's undeveloped land and to insure orderly growth these proposals are necessary.

Since the plan was started in 1960 the borough has enacted a zoning ordinance and undertaken the Courtland St. and Lincoln Ave. urban projects.

Need 351.3 Acres

The planners found the borough will require 351.3 acres of land to meet the demands of the next 20 years.

Residential building will take up 120 acres; industrial, 88.4 acres; public and semi-public facilities, 86.4, and street construction, 68.

The central business district —which was found in immediate need of improvement—will lose 11 of its present 50-acre area to off-street parking and razing to make room for expansion.

The borough's industrial development plan calls for reserving land for expanding Patterson-Kelley and the International Boiler Works Co.

In addition the Lincoln Ave. area will be used as a 40-acre industrial park and 20 more acres between N. Courtland St. and the Erie-Lackawanna Railroad tracks have been earmarked for light manufacturing.

A large share of the 120 acres set aside for public use will be used by an expanding East Stroudsburg State College an institution that will play a major role in the borough's future, the plan points out.

The planners call for strict enforcement of the plan's proposals and indicate constant revision will be needed to keep the borough from repeating its past mistakes in land use. Public co-operation is ansolute must if the borough is going to meet the challenge of the future, the plan maintains.

The planning commission will play a vital role in informing borough residents about the importance of a continuing planning program for the borough.

Three Area Streams To Be Stocked

STROUDSBURG — Three area streams will soon be stocked with more trout announced Jim Hazen, Monroe County Fish Warden yesterday.

Trout will be stocked in McMichaels Creek and Devils Hole Creek on June 1; and in Pohopco Creek on June 4, Hazen said.

While stocking Brodheadsville Creek yesterday, Hazen reported that less than 10 per cent of fish had been caught. The stream is heavily stocked with Brown trout, and live bait or flies are working best now.

The fishing is good in Brodheadsville Creek now because of an abundance of aquadic life and a large fly hatch, he said. Hazen said the water temperature was 68 degrees in the stream. Temperatures in the 60's provide good fly fishing because the fish are feeding on the surface.

Brown was appointed to his post by Gov. William Scranton last year. He had logged 25 years with the bureau before becoming its director.

Also in attendance at the dinner and meeting will be Miss Patricia Lee Falcinelli, Miss Poconos of 1964.

Commissioners Commended For Burnley Workshop Aid

SNYDERSVILLE — Dr. John Martucci, physician for the Pleasant Valley Manor, yesterday commended the county commissioners for their work in kicking off the campaign for the proposed Burnley Sheltered Workshop in East Stroudsburg.

Dr. Martucci spoke at a meeting of county office heads in the manor.

He said that "the commissioners should be commended on their initiative in giving $5,000 to kick off the workshop campaign.

"It's much needed -- to put such a handicapped person in a private institution wo - cost a minimum of $5,000 per year."

The doctor also announced that the manor will receive its own narcotics number so that narcotics purchases may be made more easily. He said that many cases of terminal cancer are treated at the manor and the narcotics are used for pain relief.

He also suggested that the basement of the new $600,000 addition to the manor, currently under construction, should have its basement fully excavated. Current plans call for only a shallow digging.

He said that insects and rodents might find the shallow dirt - based cellar a home, and that the digging out would give much needed space for the emergency hospital which is contained in the basement of the current building.

In the medical vein, commissioner Stuart Pipher lauded the General Hospital of Monroe County for the excellent treatment he received there in having tests made.

Kleppinger Winds Up Training

PARRIS ISLAND, S.C. — Marine Private LeRue R. Kleppinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homar A. Kleppinger of Route 2, Kunkletown, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

The training included drill, bayonet training, physical fitness, parades and ceremonies and other military subjects. Three weeks were spent on the rifle range firing the M-14 rifle and other infantry weapons.

Recruit training prepares Marines for further specialized training in a service school or with a unit of the Fleet Marine Force. He will report to Camp Lejeune, N.C., for combat infantry training.

Non-Taxables In County Totals 1,567

SNYDERSVILLE—C. A. Nauman, chief assessor for Monroe County, told the county office officials yesterday at Pleasant Valley Manor that there were 1,567 non-taxables in the county this year.

He added that there were 22,332 taxable persons. He said that the non-taxable figure was too high. The figures compared with 1,489 non-taxables in 1962 and 22,164 taxables in that year.

He added that the new occupational assessment books were completed, but some were late. He announced that he will turn over $162.40 from map and name revenue to the county today.

Two hundred employers have answered a questionnaire designed to make the local occupational assessments more equitable, he said.

Hundreds Of Fish Die Near Easton

EASTON, Pa. (AP) — Several hundred fish were killed and other thousands were sickened when an unknown toxicant entered the Lehigh River Monday night near Easton.

Investigators from the state Department of Health, aided by engineers from industries along the river, are investigating the source.

Airport Authority Plans Outlined To County Aides

SNYDERSVILLE — LeRoy Dengler, chairman of the Mt. Pocono Airport Authority, yesterday outlined plans for the Pocono Mountains Airport to the county office heads at Pleasant Valley Manor.

Dengler said that work on a Coolbaugh Twp. road is progressing. When the road is completed, a strip of old Rt. 611 will be barricaded and the Federal Aviation Agency will release $24,000 in money to the authority.

He said that the authority is approaching phase two of the development of the airport. This will include the construction of hangars, office space, rest rooms, and T-hangers.

He said that ameeting is scheduled for June 2 at 8 p.m. in the Mt. Pocono municipal building where the authority and the county commissioners will ask the supervisors of the contributing municipalities to authorize a quarter - mill tax to help finance the airport.

Dengler said that from September 1, 1961 until December 31, 1963, 50,000 pilots and air travelers had emplaned and deplaned at the airport. He said this represented about 7,500 planes.

He also announced that the former leases of the airport, Aero-Mod Corp., will leave the facility by June 1.

He mentioned that the airport had sold $13,000 worth of gasoline in 1963 compared to $9,000 for Avoca Airport in Scranton.

So far this year, Dengler said, DuPont, Grumman, Lehigh Aviation, Celanese Corp., Corning Glass Works, General Electrict, and Scott Paper, among others, had used the airport.

He said Corning had scheduled a conference in the Poconos and "said they would not have used the Poconos were it not for the airport."

Employment Up In State

HARRISBURG (AP) — Employment in Pennsylvania increased by 25,700 between March and April this year, the Labor and Industry Department reported this week.

This brought the employment total at the end of the reporting period to 4,266,900, according to William P. Young, secretary of labor and industry.

This was 20,200 higher than the same period last year, Young said.

He attributed most of the increase to seasonal gains in nonmanufacturing industries and a substantial improvement in manufacturing employment.

Cy Barrett Says

Credit Union Assets

By Cyrus Barrett, Jr.

DEAR CY:

Your column appeals to us credit union members, too. We like to be informed about money and have an interest in getting the most out of a dollar. Did you know, Cy, the credit union idea began 114 years ago in Bavaria and there are now approximately 18 million members in 67 countries?

DETROIT READER

DEAR DETROIT READER:

I never heard those figures, but why didn't you crag about the country's largest credit union? It is located in your state. The Iron Mountain-Kingsford Community Federal Credit Union (Iron Mountain Mich.) was started in 1948 with 995 members and $169,000 invested in shares. Sixteen years and 28,816 loans later, it has 6,000 members and assets of $4,125,000.

With tourism playing a growing role in the economices of the upper peninsula of Michigin, financing tourist attractions has become inportant to the organization. In 1960, it loaned four residents money to pump water out of an abandoned iron mine, and to open it to the public. Modern safety devices and an elevarot were installed. Since reopening it, 57,00 tourists have been guided through by experienced underground miners.

Another credit union loan backed the Hiawatha River cruise of the Milton Becker family. Two stern wheel riverboats take tourists up and down the Menomonee river which cuts a border through forests to separate Michigan from Wisconsin. George R. La Chapelle, credit union manager, comments: "We are not only interested in individual members' welfare but the welfare of the community." O.K., George. You are doing a good job. Now, which way to the wickets for tickets?

CY

DEAR CY:

Did I hear right that David Rockefeller is starting a peace corps of executives to counsel small businessmen? How do I get in on this free help? Is this a government deal?

BEN SHELL

DEAR BEN:

The new strategy for avoiding war is to recruit everyone in some sort of peace corps. David Rockefeller originated the idea of an Executive Peace Corps to help foreign companies with modern management techniques. Known as the Executive Service Corps, the organization is not part of federal government.

Recently, Small Business Administrator Eugene P. Foley announced plans to develop a national volunteer corps of retired buisness executives to counsel small businessmen. Like Rockefeller's non - profit organization, the SBA is in the process of recruiting volunteer talent.

Urban Renewal Report Given

SNYDERSVILLE — A status report on the S. Courtland St. urban renewal project in East Stroudsburg was given yesterday to the heads of county offices at a meeting at Pleasant Valley Manor.

The report was made by King Beers, executive director of the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority.

Beers said that final approval has been given the project by all county agencies. He added that the authority has asked the state for $8,937 for its share in the project, leaving East Stroudsburg with only a $4,737 bill for half the cost of widening alley A.

Beers said that the authority submitted the final project report to the Housing and Home Finance Agency in Philadelphia and to the state on May 26.

He said that the authority had met with two acquisition appraisers and reviewed all appraisals of property in the area, and forwarded the approved prices to the HHFA for concurrence. He said that prices should be discussed with property owners June 8.

On the Lincoln Ave. project, Beers said that the HHFA approved the revised preliminary part two of the project and authorized the authority to plan final disposition of the land. He added that a second public hearing will be necessary because of plan changes since the initial application.

He added that he had met with potential developers during May.

State Development Head To Report On Project 70

HAZLETON — Daniel Rogers, director of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Community Development, will give the latest report on Project 70 — the new state, regional and local recreational plan — at the annual meeting of the Northeast Pennsylvania Industrial Development Commission on Thursday night, May 28, at Genetti's Lodge, Hazleton.

William Bellano, general chairman, said that Project 70 which was voted last fall in a state referendum, is now moving through the legislature. Rogers' bureau will handle project applications when the program is finally cleared.

John L. Sweeney, executive director of the President's Appalachian Regional Commission, will make an up-to-the-minute report on the "Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1964," now undergoing hearings in the House of Representatives.

Roy Stauffer, father of area industrial development, will be honored for his community leadership efforts in creating regional jobs through local plant financing and construction.

Mr. Rogers was named to his post in 1959 after serving as chief of the Housing and Redevelopment division of the Commerce Department for 10 years. Prior to that time, he was executive director of the State Board of Housing from 1946 to 1949.

In addition to wide experience in housing, planning and redevelopment, Rogers is a colonel in the Pennsylvania National Guard.

He is a director of the Susquehanna River Basin Association, Friends of Fort Hunter and Harrisburg Academy. He is past commander of the Central Pennsylvania Chapter of the Military Order of World Wars and a member of the Pennsylvania Planning Association, the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials, the Engineers Society of Pennsylvania.

A graduate of the University of Delaware, Rogers holds a B.S. and Ch. E. degrees.

He will be accompanied to Hazleton by Otto Amman, his special projects associate with the Bureau of Community Development.

Chairman Bellano said that reservations for the dinner can be obtained through local Chambers of Commerces.

305th Signal Unit Back From Camp

TOBYHANNA — The 114-man 305th Signal Company, after a 10 hour bus trip, returned to Tobyhanna from its annual two weeks summer encampment at Camp Pickett, Virginia.

"It was one of the best, perhaps the most instructive summer camps we've ever had," said Captain John C. Absalom of Buck Hill Falls.

Capt. Abslom said most of the training was centered on testing and installing radios and other types of signal equipment.

"We've been studying all facets of that subject in classrooms at the center, this year," Capt. Absalom noted. "And the men were given an excellent opportunity to put into practice what they were taught during realistic training.'

"The encampment has resulted in increasing our capabilities as members of the defense force," he said. "We look forward to meeting the challenge of our reserve responsibilities in the years to come,' he added.

Members of the 305th Signal Company (forward support and maintenance) are among 33,500 reservists of the 21st U.S. Army Corps who are participating in the 1964 summer encampment program.

The unit is commanded by Major General Van H. Bond.

Debt Limit Change Sought

HARRISBURG (AP) — Sen. Z. H. Confair, R-Lycoming, picked up bi-partisan support this week in his efforts to broaden the state's borrowing power and eliminate the $1 million debt ceiling.

Three Republicans and two Democrats joined Confair in proposing a constitutional amendment that would eliminate the General State Authority and Highway and Bridge Authority and give the state the power to borrow money directly.

All long term debts would have to be authorized by law under the Confair proposal, requiring approval by the legislature and the people.

Under present law the state is prohibited from incurring any debt over $1 million, except in times of emergency. Most of the borrowing is handled by GSA, the state's "borrow and build" agency. The School Building Authority would be the only state borrowing agency not affected by the proposal.

The Confair bill hailed by its backers as a means of saving money by cutting interest rates, was referred to the committee on legislation.

Smoke Falls Chimney Worker

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — "It was just one of those things. Just a slight accident. I'll be going back up again."

Those were the words of Anthony Rose, 35, of Allentown, who became sickened by smoke and fumes atop a 150-foot smoke stack yesterday, fell unconscious, and was rescued -- Alpine style—by three men after more than an hour.

A timber across the mouth of the smokestack was all that kept Rose from falling. The three rescuers scaled the metal rungs on the outside of the steel smokestack, looped a rope around his waist and brought him down.

Rose was one of three men inspecting the smokestack on assignment from the New Jersey Chimney Co., Wilmington, Del., The smokestack is located at the Alan Wood Steel Co., in Swedeland.

GRAVE DECORATIONS FOR BEAUTY

Cutting and trimming grass is one of the largest and most costly maintenance activities in a Cemetery. The use of artificial flowers and wreaths on graves greatly hinders the grass cutting and increases its cost.

A. In order that our entire Cemetery may always present as neat and orderly appearance as possible it is requested that flowers be placed on graves only in approved containers.

B. Artificial flowers, imitation plants, ribbons, styrofoam designs, and similar decorations are not permitted during the mowing season, May 1st to October 15th. Articles made of concrete — urns, benches, boxes, etc., are not permitted, as such articles on lots greatly add to costs.

C. The placing of boxes, shells, toys, metal designs, ornaments, chairs, vases, glass, wood or iron cases, glass and plastic blocks, artificial animals, tin cans, crockery, waste baskets, pails, cardboard cartons, etc., shall not be permitted.

D. Winter decorations, such as natural and artificial wreaths, placed on easels, will be permitted from October 15th to April 15th.

E. Natural flowers will be permitted at any time, and will be removed when wilted. Potted plants will be permitted upon graves only at Easter, Mother's Day, and Memorial Day, and will be removed after one week.

F. Removed items of value may be claimed at Cemetery work shed. Your assistance in helping us to keep the Cemetery beautiful will be greatly appreciated.

Just Between Us——

by Bobby Westbrook

People who complain because there's nothing to do about the weather don't know when they are well off. If individuals or states were able to control it, it would probably be the primary cause for a hot war, and it certainly would set off neighborhood riots.

Basically, we're pretty selfish about weather. At this point in the springtime, we're all pretty well agreed that we need rain, with the intensity of the agreement conditioned by how much work we've put in on the garden or lawn. But try and find two people to agree as to just when would be the best time for a storm.

It's easier to agree when not to have it. For instance, it would probably be difficult to find anybody, except maybe the man whose wife had made him promise to do all those outdoor household chores over the weekend, to agree that we could use the rain over the Memorial Day holiday.

Having no choice in the matter we can enjoy the sunshine without a guilty conscience. There's usually not much choice about whether or not people go to the hospital, either, but my visit was a purely voluntary one yesterday.

I've always contended that the easiest way to fill the family fare page would be to set up shop in the hospital corridor where more news is exchanged an hour than a whole day of Courthouse Square sitting.

For instance, yesterday, I picked up a dandy household hint from Betty McClelland, back for a check-up. Now on the fourth cast for her broken leg, she's an expert on how to be comfortable while the bones are knitting.

Since broken legs need to be propped up, she takes a handsome black wicker wastebasket with her, filled with a black pillow and a book, or knitting, or other time-occupiers. Turn the wastebasket upside down, put the pillow on top and you can tend to your knitting in comfort.

She's also an expert in how to be useful while mending. Congratulated on taking on the chairmanship of the Ann Logan booth at the West End Fair, she explained that there are advantages: few people have the courage to turn down a request for their services from a woman who's doing a job despite a broken leg.

Hoffman-Shook Wedding Is Held At Stone Church

Bangor—Miss Barbara Ann Shook, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shook, of Bangor, RD 3, became the bride of Lee E. Hoffman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Hoffman, of Brodheadsville, at 4 p. m. on May 23, at Trinity United Church of Christ, Stone Church.

Rev. Richard Keen and Rev. John R. Gulick, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of nylon tulle and Chantilly lace with a sculptured neckline and bouffant overskirt with a tiered ruffle back. Her fourtiered veil was held by a pearl coronet. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses, lilies of the valley and pink sweetheart roses.

Miss Joann Parsons, of Bangor, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Brenda Altorfer and Miss Marianne Ike, cousins of the bride, and Miss Joan Leopold, all of Bangor.

The attendants wore gowns of mint green lace and chiffon with matching headpieces with veils. They carried cascade bouquets of white Shasta daisy pompons.

W. Charles Hoffman, of Brodheadsville, served as his brother's best man. Ushers were Charles W. Shook, Bangor, brother of the bride; Richard G. Seidof, Sciota, and David Dorshimer, Brodheadsville.

Potential GOP Nominees As One Woman Saw Them

Mount Pocono — Personal impressions of potential Presidential nominees by Mrs. Joseph M. Shukaitis of Shawnee, who represented the Republican Women of Monroe County at the National Republican Women's Conference in Washington last month, made the Pocono Mountains Council of Republican Women at Sharbaugh Pines one of their most stimulating.

The main speakers were Senator Margaret Chase Smith, Mrs. George Romney, Senator Goldwater and Gov. Rockefeller, and Gov. William Scranton, and Mrs. Shukaitis' reactions ranged from the amusing to serious and critical.

In explaining the new GROW (grass roots organization of women) program, she stressed the main purpose: to make more women understand why they are needed and how they can serve in politics. She also pointed out that the National Educational Assn. has been working to encourage teacher participation in politics.

Mrs. Shukaitis, who appeared at a Congressional hearing on Tock's Island Dam later in the month, explained that her main concern in testifying has been the failure of the Delaware River Basin Compact to provide for inland water needs as they occur.

Mrs. John M. Gebbie president of the Monroe Council of Republican Women was also a guest at the meeting.

Mrs. Herbert Sharbaugh was host to the group with refreshments served by Mrs. Patrick J. Horgan and Mrs. O. Wardell Megargel Jr.

The final meeting of the season will be a penny supper picnic on June 29 at the home of President Eloise Bryan on the Swiftwater, to which members of other councils and the public is invited. A state level speaker is expected.

The executive committee will complete plans for the picnic at a meeting on Thursday, June 4 at the home of Mrs. Patrick Horgan, Manor View Way, Mt. Pocono.

'Making Of A Saint' Breakfast Speaker's Theme

Canadensis — The "Making of a Saint" was the topic for the 20th annual Communion Breakfast held recently by St. Ann's Altar and Rosary Society at Hillside Lodge, Canadensis.

Mrs. Allen Shollenberger spoke on the life and actions of Mother Seton, and the reasons for her coming to the attention of the Catholic Church.

The mother of five children, Mother Seton is responsible for founding a free school in Maryland and teaching youngsters during a lifetime filled with trials.

According to the policy necessary for canonization, two more documented and proven miracles must be attributed to Mother Seton before she will be canonized as a saint in the Catholic Church.

Beatification has taken place in the church and, if canonization should follow, she will become the first native-born American to be named a saint.

Mothers and daughters gathering for the breakfast commended Mrs. Harold Kreck, Mrs. Leon Meyung and Mrs. Edwin Caprioli for making the arrangements.

A statute of the Madonna surrounded by laurel, white chrysanthemums, snapdragons and daisies was flanked by white candles in crystal holders as a centerpiece for the speaker's table.

Press Treatment Of Negroes Varies, Johnson Says

(This address was made to managers and editors of six Ottaway newspapers last weekend at their annual conference at Buck Hill Falls. Johnson, a Stroudsburg Negro, is assistant secretary to Governor William Scranton.)

By William D. Johnson

If we were to look at a cross-section of the daily newspapers published in the northeastern part of the United States, and to strike off a sort of "balance sheet" on what we might call "The Press and Race Relations," this is what we might find:

By and large, I think, it seems clear that the press in this section of the country is doing a good job of keeping the people informed of important developments in race relations, and of supporting editorially the legislation, policies and actions that will be necessary to end racial injustice in the United States.

Local Reporting

However, practices vary widely from newspaper to newspaper, and while an individual newspaper may be doing a good job of covering civil rights nationally, its performance at the local level may be less than meritorious.

Let's go down over some of the elements in this balance sheet.

Take fair employmene practices, for instance. In the newspaper's own plant, I mean, not just out in the rest of the community.

Newspaper Hiring

In some cities, newspapers recently have started to hire Negroes in their business, advertising and editorial offices. A few newspapers also have placed Negroes in their composing rooms and press rooms.

In a few cases, this hiring was wholely voluntary and preceded any organized demands from the Negro community, but in other cases, it came about only after Negro organizations or civil rights groups pointed out the absence of Negroes in a newspaper plant, except possibly as janitors, and demanded that Negroes be hired for some of these jobs.

That is what happened in Philadelphia. And in Harrisburg recently, the hiring of a Negro reporter by one of the daily newspapers coincided with a demand by a local selective patronage committee.

William Johnson

Lilly Whie

On the voluntary side, however, the owner of several small dailies in Western Pennsylvania hired a Negro compositor four or five years ago, and more recently accepted a Negro apprentice in its press room.

Overall, however, the balance sheet in this respect is on the negative side, for in the offices of most daily newspaper, even in cities with a fairly large Negro population, the complexion is lily-white.

At this point you could explain that you are referring to the hiring of Negroes who are qualified to perform jobs in newspaper plants, not simply to the hiring of Negroes, per se.

Somebody, for instance, likely will object that Negroes aren't qualified for skilled jobs on newspapers, or that Negroes never apply.

With respect to the first point, it may be that there will be some job openings on a paper that cannot be filled by any Negroes living in that particular community or elsewhere in the state.

However, there are many jobs on a newspaper which are filled regularly by local high school graduates with no special skills or unusual training.

On the second point, it has been demonstrated time and again all over the country that the existence of an all-white employe group over a period of time drys up the flow of applications from non-whites, who assume, correctly or incorrectly, that they would not be hired.

For this reason, newspapers wishing to reflect the ethnic composition of their communities may have to make a special recruiting effort in the Negro community in order to secure applications from Negroes.

National Coverage Good

Newspapers generally have done an excellent job in exposing racial injustice at the national and international level.

Few Americans in this section of the country could honestly say that they have not read about the obstacles placed in the way of Negroes voting in the south, the use of fire hoses and police dogs against Negroes in Birmingham, or the policies of racial apartheid in South Africa.

This newspaper coverage has included both spot news during periods of controversy and background stories on the development of racial crises.

Injustice At Home

At the state and local level, however, the picture is not as good. Some newspapers appear to be less enthusiastic about exposing racial injustice in employment, housing and education in their own cities, than they are about similar conditions in the south.

Incidents of disorder are reported, of course, but few local newspapers have bothered to dig into the causes of racial discrimination at the local level.

I am told by the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission that news releases on its various educational programs are not used very widely, although some improvement has been noted during the past year.

There are notable exceptions, fortunately, and some newspapers have served their communities well in educating citizens concerning local race relations problems.

For instance, after the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission made a series of educational visits to resorts and other places of public accommodations in the Pocono area last year, a detailed story was carried by the Stroudsburg Daily Record.

Causes Of Tension

Incidents of racial tension and conflict in Pennsylvania have been kept small in number, and nearly all newspapers in our state have reported these situations objectively and with restraint.

However, newspaper editors sometimes ask whether they are doing the right thing in reporting racial incidents. I am sure they are.

The causes of such incidents, and the underlying problems that affect Negro citizens, cannot be eliminated until the public has been made aware of these problems and the cost to everyone in our society.

If there is any criticism to be made about the reporting of racial incidents, it is that nearly all of the emphasis has been placed on the "who, what, when and where" of the controversy, and too little on the "why" of the situation.

Most white citizens still do not know "why" Negro citizens in northern states are dissatisfied with the status quo, and this causes them to be unnecessarily resentful and hurt by the Negro's legitimate demands.

Specific Addresses

As I have indicated, the advantages of thoroughly reporting local racial incidents far outweigh any possible disadvantages.

However, an illustration of one such disadvantage is the use in newspaper and on radio of the specific address of a scene of racial tension — such as a house into which the first Negro family is planning to move.

The use of the specific address may help to attract a larger number of curious and destructive persons to the area than might occur if a more general location were given, and may tend to handicap police efforts to maintain law and order in the area.

Advertising Integration

On the thoroughly positive side of the ledger, newspapers have made a sincere and successful effort to make their advertising columns comply with Pennsylvania's anti - discrimination laws.

Most of the day - by - day policing is done by the newspapers themselves, and the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission reports that it has gotten excellent cooperation from all newspapers.

And, to give credit where credit is due, many newspapers ruled out racial and religious restrictions in their advertising columns long before they were required to do so under laws adopted in Pennsylvania in 1955 and 1961.

My final point, and I think it is really the most important in the long run, deals with the role of the newspapers as one of the most important educational influences in every community.

I am talking about a newspaper's ability either to reinforce some of the harmful stereotypes about Negroes, or to help other forces in the community to reduce prejudice based on race.

Race Identification

Race labeling in crime stories undoubtedly is our most serious problem in this area. There is no question that race labeling in crime stories strengthens the stereotype impression that all Negroes are criminally-inclined.

Scientific use of such devices as the "rumor clinic" have confirmed time and again that many white people have been conditioned to look upon Negroes as criminals, even in situations in which there is no factual or objective reason to do so.

Let us look first at the news value of labeling Negroes in crime stories.

Fifty years ago some newspapers in Pennsylvania labeled many persons in crime stories by their national origin, Italian, Irish, and Polish — sometimes even referring to the latter as Pollocks.

Times have changed and these labels apparently do not have news value any more.

In fact, it might be questioned whether they ever did have any news value, just as it might be questioned whether there is any news value in pointing out in a newspaper today that Herbert Smith, who was arrested for hitting 50-year-old Andrew Hilton with a baseball bat, is a Negro.

Hunting Criminals

You may readily agree with me that Smith's being a Negro had very little to do with this particular crime, but your police reporter will be quick to tell you that the local police value racial identifications in stories about persons they are trying to apprehend.

But, I think every newspaper ought to weigh the real value of such racial identifications. How many criminals have actually been caught because they were identified in a newspaper as a "husky Negro" or as a "tall Negro." I could have been arrested a hundred times myself if that was all the identification needed for an arrest.

However, the real villain in race labeling is that nearly all newspapers which still do it practice a double standard. If the antagonist is a Negro, he always is labeled.

If the victim is white, he is always labeled. But if the antagonist in a crime story is white, or if the victim in a crime is Negro, the label is rarely applied.

Don't Name White

Newspapers which label Negro antagonists in crime stories rarely label white antagonists in crime stories.

They tell their readers that "Herbert Smith, a Negro, hit Andrew Hamilton with a baseball bat," but they do not bother to point out for their readers in the next column that "William Breslow, who shot a service station attendant in a hold-up attempt," is a white man.

The issue here is not freedom of the press; it is consistency in exercising that freedom.

One other place in newspapers where Negroes often do not get a fair break is the women's page or the society page.

Such newspapers as The New York Times, The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin and The Harrisburg Evening News have used, from time to time, pictures of Negro women as brides and brides-elect, but such pictures often are strangely absent in many local newspapers.

Unless the women's page is for white women only and unless society means only "white society," many papers are failing to report a lot of news in their local communities.

On the other side of the coin, however, many newspapers, both large and small, have taken giant strides in helping to reduce prejudice against Negroes.

In Philadelphia, for instance, the daily newspapers some time ago adopted a policy of not carrying race labels in news stories unless race was a relevant factor in the situation: as, for instance, the picketing of a store by Negro demonstrators, or the controversy over the use of blackface in the annual Mummers parade.

In a number of cities whose newspapers I am familiar with, the activities and achievements of Negro citizens are reported right along with those of white residents of the community.

THE BANQUET SEASON

This is the banquet season. You're invited to more dinners than you can handle in one night. The bowlers, the college, the high schools all start honoring their players at about the same time.

You can't go to all of them, and more times than not you cannot even take your pick. But you can try. Sometimes it's fun. Sometimes it's entertaining. Or at least amusing. Usually, it's illuminating. But most times it's turkey.

Many times, these things get you to get thinking. And you start wondering what's wrong. And who's wrong. The turkey is dry, the ham is tough, and somehowd nothing is kosher.

What's wrong? Who's wrong? The answer is not supplied by the serving of dessert.

A week ago, I came back from the sixth annual "Brite Star" awards dinner at Club 21 and the phone starts ringing in the office of The Daily Record.

"Who won the top award?" The phone kept ringing and ringing. It was the same question. You'd think it was election night.

But there was another question, too, which also was repeated time and time again. This one was more difficult to answer. It was: "Why didn't anybody from East Stroudsburg High School get any recognition?"

The Daily Record has taken much blame for this situation. But it is not the fault of the newspaper. Unless you want to blame the publication for a policy set down by the athletic committee of the high school.

And then, in retrospect, you start thinking that the turkey and the ham wasn't really bad; it was, in fact, pretty good. It's other things that aren't right.

You go to the all-sports banquet of East Stroudsburg High School—the institution which professes disbelief in so-called "all-star" awards. And in one high school cafeteria you all at once find more stars at a dinner than you can find in the sky on a clear night at 11 p. m.

And I say this is good. The boys deserve recognition for their efforts. They deserve trophies and certificates and pictures in the newspaper and headlines and writeups. It offers them an incentive. And these athletes need an incentive. In fact, we all need an incentive in life, even if it's nothing more than a raise in pay.

And I'm for all for a raise in pay. I'm beyond the trophy stage in life.

I don't like turkey. But I'll eat it seven nights a week if I can see a boy get recognition for his athletic achievements. And if I don't eat the turkey I'll certainly be able to swallow that delicious dressing they serve with it at East Stroudsburg High School.

Now that was a better dish than all the letter-winning cheerleaders combined could offer—and, brother, that is really saying a mouthful.

Paul Patten also said a mouthful at the Eastburg sports dinner and I feel it's worth repeating.

Serving as the principal speaker, the Glen Brook golf pro noted that the "coach-player relationship is unique."

He said the coach is a "father-confessor and confidant. . . . The relationship is one of the most lasting ones in life."

He also brought out another fine point: "Competition is not exclusively a domain of sports. It's all around you. And it will encompass you all your life."

His address was remarkably similar to the one by Atty. Joseph McDonald of Dunmore, at the "Brite Star" banquet a week earlier.

McDonald told the athletes that night such an event "marks a milestone in your life but it must not be a hitching post which will stop you from moving to greater fields."

I firmly feel McDonald is right. I also believe we have a "hitching post" in East Stroudsburg. The other schools in the Pocono-Slate Belt area have their own individual sports dinners, too. But they also have the privilege of a "Brite Star" night. They have no hitching posts.

Lobb Hurls 3-Hitter But Loses Game, 3-2

By KEN O'BRIEN
Daily Record Sports Editor

BANGOR — Southern Lehigh, limited to three hits by Bangor's Larry Lobb, managed to push across as many runs to gain a 3-2 victory and win the baseball championship of the Lehigh-Northampton League yesterday. The Spartans will meet Stroud Union Friday in the opening of the District 11 playoffs.

The Slaters of Coach Louis Gulda, held hitless over the first four frames, scored their first marker in the fifth and added another in the bottom half of the seventh round when the Maroon staged a thrilling finish.

A pair of Solehi errors in that inning opened the gates for the rally.

With one down, Rodger Ackerman was safe on a two-base throwing error by pitcher Jim Mack, relieving for starter Bob Nolt who was credited with the win.

Hit And Error

Ken Dutt followed with a single to center and when the ball went through the outfielder's legs, Ackerman crossed the plate and Dutt raced to third, representing the tying run with one out.

But Steve Finta, pinch-hitting for Richard Stiles, was caught looking at a third strike and Pete Speer grounded out to the mound to end the threat and the ballgame.

Southern Lehigh, which had claimed the southern division title of the L-N league via a 4-1 playoff win over Parkland on Monday, scored the first run in the opening round when Ron Barndt was safe on an error at first, advanced to second on a wild pitch and took third on a fielder's choice and scored on a throw to second with nobody covering.

Two More

The Spartans struck for a pair of runs in the fifth frame when Fred Diefendeafer led off with a walk and advanced to second on a sacrifice bunt. Nolt took first on a catcher's interference at the plate and both runners advanced on a passed ball. Barndt stroked a single to right, scoring both runners.

Down by a 3-0 count, Bangor reached the scoreboard in the bottom of the fifth when Ackerman singled to left with one away. After Dutt hit into a fielder's choice, Stiles doubled to right-center, scoring Dutt. But Stiles was thrown out going to third on a rifle peg from centerfielder Jim Mack.

The Slaters threatened again in the next inning when Pete Speer led off with a single to left. After Pete Heard fanned, Jim Parsons walked which spelled the end for Nolt. Mack took over on the mound and got Jim Dietz to pop up and Lobb ended it by flying out.

The defeat was only the second of the season for the Slaters who had finished the campaign with a 10-1-1 record overall and 9-0-1 in the league. Stroud Union, undefeated and winners of the Lehigh Valley League, had owned the only victory over Bangor.

Needs Putting Skill

Palmer Panting For Open

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Arnold Palmer has his jaw out, his dander up and his adrenalin gushing for next month's National Open golf tournament.

"I feel that one of these days I'm going to break out in a putting rash," the fairway Croesus from Latrobe, Pa., said Wednesday. "I haven't putted since 1960. I feel I'll get it back, and when I do. . . ."

Palmer's words and thoughts suddenly drifted away, probably floating toward the Congressional Club, outside Washington, D.C., where the 64th Open will be contested June 18-20.

He makes no bones about the fact that he wants this one, and wants it badly—and is confident he can do it.

Needs Open

Already winner of his fourth Masters, Palmer needs the Open as the second link in the professional Grand Slam on which he has constant aim. If he wins at Congressional, he'll go on to try for the British Open at St. Andrews and the PGA at Columbus, Ohio.

"Certainly, I think I can win," Palmer said confidently. "Do you think I'd do all this practicing or even show up if I didn't believe so?

"I'm working hard on my game, I'm driving well and playing as well as I know how. All I need is to get that putting touch back."

Most observers wonder if he ever will. They regard Palmer's putting exploits of the late 1950s and 1960—when he was pulling championships out of the fire with birdie putts of unbelievable length—as a modern miracle.

Miracle Man?

He's had enough miracles, they say, for any one man in a lifetime.

Palmer said he would take another practice tour around the 7,053-yard, par 70 Congressional course Thursday.

The Masters champion had his pride stung by an analysis on the part of Robert Trent Jones the golf course architect, that Palmer and most of the other big hitters could be discounted as Open threats. Jones, who directed the toughening of the course, calls it a "thinking man's course."

Constant Pessimism Mets Fate

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) —The telephone rang in the sports department at the Waterbury Republican Wednesday with a routine query.

"How many runs did the New York Mets score last night?" the called asked.

"Nineteen," was the reply. From the other end of the wire:

"Did they win?"

35 Mock Games

NEW YORK (AP) — National Football League clubs will play 35 preseason exhibition games this year, starting with the meeting between the champion Chicago Bears and the College All-Stars Aug. 7 and ending with the Hall of Fame game at Canton, Ohio., Sept. 6 between Baltimore and Pittsburgh.

Monticello To Open Tonight

MONTICELLO, N. Y.—Monticello Raceway, New York State's third ranked harness track, ushers in its seventh season of racing under the lights tonight, amid predictions for new first-night attendance and handle records.

The Sullivan County oval, situated in the heart of the Catskill Mountain resort area, gets the ball rolling on its meet at 9 p.m., 10 minutes after the Daily Double windows are shuttered.

The Daily Record will carry both entries and results during the racing season at Monticello. Entries for the day's races will be listed with the results of the previous night's card.

Heading the nine-race card for opening night is a $3500 invitational pace — dubbed "The Inaugural" — which finds Canadian-owned Starbound listed as the 3-1 moring line favorite.

A crowd upwards of 9,000 is expected to turn out to welcome the standardbreds back to the local area after an eight-month absence.

The self-styled Mighty M opened up in record style a year ago as 8,497 race-goers turned out and pushed $419,527 through the pari-mutuel windows.

With cooperation from the weatherman, both standards could fall by the wayside this evening.

R. C. Cramer Nets 10 Runs To Top Bank

EAST STROUDSBURG — R. C. Cramer Lumber Co. blasted by the East Stroudsburg National Bank in Little League play last night, 10-8.

The bankers chalked up one more hit than the lumberjacks, but two less runs.

Shook struck out 10 and walked eight on his way to the win. Barnes took the loss.

Barnes and Brown each had a double for the bank to round out the extra base scoring.

Hartshorn Hurls 1-Hitter As Tanners Top Lake, 3-1

TANNERSVILLE — Gary Hartshorn hurled a one hitter and struck out 15 to lead his Tannersville Babe Ruth team to a 3-1 victory over Pocono Lake last night.

The one hit was a clout over the wall by Pocono Lake's Doug Miller. Hartshorn shackled the lakers the rest of the way.

Pocono Lake committed 10 errors. Robert Price blasted the only other extra-base hit, a double for Tannersville.

Paul Dailey was the losing pitcher, replaced by Rod Slagle in the sixth inning. Slagle blanked the Tannersville team the rest of the way.

Price had two hits for Tannersville, the only person in the game with more than one hit.

Tannersville chalked up an error to Pocono Lake's 10 bloopers.

Bank Tops Sears In LL, 11-2

STROUDSBURG — The First Stroudsburg National Bank swamped Wyckoff-Sears in Stroudsburg Little League competition last night, 11-2.

Stettler took the win, whiffing nine and passing two batters.

Perry, Stump, and DeRenzis all smacked doubles for the bank, while Funk hit a two-bagger for Wyckoffs.

Poorman took the loss, giving up all 11 runs on 10 hits.

The bankers magic infield came up with a double play — something unusual for little league play — with the putouts going from Perry to Altemose to Reese. Bonser had an unassisted DP for the losers.

St. John's To Drop Football

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) - St. John's High School, Pittston, will drop football effective immediately, according to an announcement by the Rev. William Wheeler, moderator of athletics. Father Wheeler said it means an end to almost half a century of the sport at St. John's. He said mounting costs led to the decision to discontinue football. St. John's has basketball and baseball teams.

The Anaheim Angels

LOS ANGELES — Walter O'Malley has made it startling clear that moisture isn't likely to form in his baby blue eyes if Del Webb takes the Los Angeles Angels by the hand and leads them to the playing fields of Anaheim.

In a private interview with this correspondent, the illustrious owner of the Dodgers said that the Angels were entitled to keep house for themselves, and, in fact would probably be better off.

He also stated that if they choose to remain in Chavez Ravine, they will be facing a boost in rent, due to costs that lately have risen.

He made it plain, to, that Webb was "disappointed" at not getting the contract for the building of $18 million Dodger Stadium, and has every confidence in Webb to make good his promise to construct a better park in Anaheim.

O'Malley says he has engaged in no open fight with the Angel management, but finds himself disturbed at receiving no direct information from his tenants on future plans.

"From what I read in the newspapers and gather on television, they seem to be moving," he says. "I feel they owe me the courtesy of letting me know what's happening. I also would like this information at the earliest date so I can make arrangements for other tenants.

"The Motorama people, for instance, have expressed an interest in renting our park for two weeks in September of 1966. This is a show that draws a million people, or more than the Angels draw all year. I can make no commitments until I know what's doing with the ball club."

As recently as last Friday, Angel owner Gene Autry went on TV with Webb and left no doubt but what he wanted Anaheim as his new corral.

Webb encouraged him, promising to build a ball park in which people could find their way easier than in Dodger Stadium.

Stupid Fans

"You know how stupid baseball fans are," said Webb. "They get lost even when you hang signs right in front of them."

The co-owner of the Yankees has run a darkly fascinating course in connection with major league baseball in this area. When citizens here were struggling to bring a franchise to Los Angeles, he issued a helpful statement that the city wasn't yet ready for it.

Next seen, he was trying to land the contract to build O'Malley's ball park.

Having said that Los Angeles wasn't ready for one big league team, he then plumped to plant a second one here, namely, the Angels.

And now he has advocated a move by the American League club to Anaheim where he has the inside track for putting up the stadium.

O'Malley is remarkably restrained in speaking of Webb. Asked why he didn't award the Dodger Stadium project to Del's company, O'Malley replied:

"I was paying an engineering firm for advice. It recommended that I give the job to the Vinnell Construction Company. I did as I was told."

"Did this create strained feelings with you and Webb?" O'Malley was asked.

"We have greeted each other cordially since," he answered.

"Have you been on social terms?"

"No."

"Was Webb angry at losing the job?"

"Let's just say he was disappointed."

No Guilt

If the Angels depart his loving arms, O'Malley says he will suffer no guilt feelings over his treatment of them.

"We have been eminently fair with the Angels right from the beginning," he says. "We let them come into the territory which we had acquired. We waived the five-mile restriction by letting them play in Wrigley Field while we occupied the Coliseum. We even let them use the name 'Angels' which belonged to us since our purchase of the old Coast League team.

"The rental we gave them in Dodger Stadium was certainly more satisfactory than we got in the Coliseum, which charged us a flat 10 per cent and took all concessions money except for 11 games. We also got no parking."

Under their agreement with the Dodgers, the Angels now pay 7½ per cent of the gross, with a minimum of $200,000 a year; they get half the concessions profits, but no parking.

O'Malley admits that differences have developed between tenants and landlord at Dodger Stadium, but describes them as mostly minor.

"The Angels have protested, for instance, over the way we cut the grass," he says. "They claim we cut it to suit our team, not theirs. They feel the same about the field dimensions.

"They also complained about having to pay their share to have Dodger office windows cleaned. Well, this beef was legitimate and we released them from this payment.

"Then they don't like to pay to have the flowers watered during their home stands. I told them that we can't let the flowers go without water just because we're not home. They feel that the posies are our responsibility.

"The Angels also have been reluctant to hose down the stands after every game, as the Dodgers do. I insist upon this. We have the cleanest stadium in America and we're going to keep it that way. The job involves 40 union men. The Angels claim that other clubs don't hose down their stands as often."

O'Malley admits that dual occupancy creates problems in any stadium.

Landlards Dominate

"The landlord must dominate the decisions," he says, "even though they aren't always popular with the tenant. For this reason, I honestly believe the Angels will be better off in their own place. They can water their flowers when they like, hose down their stands when they like and grow their grass to any length.

"Two teams in the same park never worked well in New York, Philadelphia, or St. Louis. If the Angels want Anaheim, and Anaheim wants the Angels, God bless 'em. They can have each other."

"How do you feel about Anaheim?" O'Malley was asked.

"Anaheim is all right," he answered. "We have a lot of fans there."

"And what if the deal in Anaheim blows up. Will the Angels choose to remain in your stadium?"

"I doubt it seriously," said O'Malley. "It would be necessary to change the rental arrangement with them when the current lease expires. Our taxes have gone up and our costs of operating the stadium have risen, too. I'm afraid their rent would be considerably higher.

"Besides, from what I've been reading and hearing on TV, the Angels would be happier elsewhere in a place where they can have their own identity."

Asked if he would miss the Angel revenue, O'Malley responded:

"It won't make much difference if our real estate taxes drop after they leave. We are being taxed now as a two-team stadium. We have hopes that if the Angels move, our taxes will be lowered commensurately."

"Will Dodger attendance go up if the Angels leave town?"

"I doubt it," said O'Malley. "We are operating at just about our peak now. I don't think it can go any higher."

After 24 home games, the Dodgers are running 122,600 ahead of attendance in 1963 when they drew more than 2,500,000 customers.

Asked if he were piqued by subtle innuendo on the part of Webb that Dodger Stadium wasn't the last word in comfortable ball parks, O'Malley replied:

"If Webb wants to make nasty inferences, that's his business. I'm not getting into that sort of thing. I hope he builds the best stadium in Anaheim and everyone is happy."

Not long ago in Boston, Webb advised the city that it, too, could use a new stadium, presumably built by him. Tom Yawkey, owner of the Red Sox, responded quietly:

"I'll take care of Boston. Let Mr. Webb take care of Anaheim."

Roberts Still Listed Critical

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Glenn (Fireball) Roberts remained in critical but conscious condition Tuesday, more than 48 hours after receiving severe burns over most of his body in a three-car pile-up in the World 600 stock car race.

About 70 per cent of his body was burned, over 30 per cent receiving third-degree burns, in a fiery crash that knocked the 33-year-old Daytona Beach, Fla., driver out of the 600-mile race at Charlotte Motor Speedway Sunday in the opening minutes.

'500' Inspection Receives Okay

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis Motor Speedway technical committee finished up inspections Tuesday on the 33 cars that will start Saturday in the 48th 500-mile race and found nobody was cheating.

All the engines—23 Offenhauser fours, seven special Ford v-8s, and three supercharged Novi v-8s—were within the size limits.

While the automotive engineers recorded such things as bore, stroke, chassis length and weight and the various required safety features, they didn't ask the crews to list their fuel tanks' capacity — and that could be vital.

Ike Steals Play From Palmer In Golf Match

ARDMORE, Pa. (AP) — Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower stole the play and the gallery from partner Arnold Palmer Tuesday in winning a charity golf exhibition from Jimmy Demaret and dancer Ray Bolger over the Merion Golf Club course.

The Eisenhower-Palmer team, playing par golf, trounced their opponents 3 and 2.

With the match over at the 16th, officials asked Palmer if the match should continue the last two meaningless holes.

"It's up to the General," the four-time Masters champion said.

The former President, tanned and fit for his 73 years, turned to an aide who said, "I think it would be better if we leave, General."

"Ah, let's go on and play it out," Eisenhower said. Then he proceeded to the 17th hole where he ran in a 40-foot putt over two rolls for a birdie deuce.

The limited crowd of 700—200 patrons who paid $100 and 500 who forked over $50 each for the Heart Association of Southeastern Pennsylvania's b nefit — became delirious.

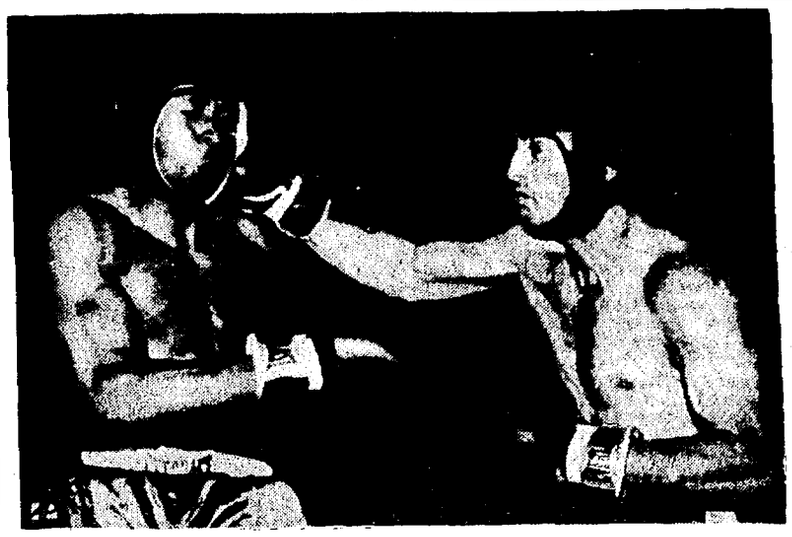
The match was played under the Chapman System. Each player hit a drive and played his partner's ball on his second shot. Then each team played one ball the rest of the way, hitting alternate shots.

"You're great Ike," s o m e yelled. The five-star general had even captured Arnie's Army.

The fabulous putt on the 17th was just one of a half-dozen key shots turned in by the spry former President whose golf up to now has been a classified secret.

He never missed a fairway, and he chipped and putted brilliantly as the partner of Palmer, whose booming drives, although often wild, kept the team in the vicinity of par.

"This is certainly a terrific man," Palmer said. "I thought he played superbly all day. It was a pleasure being his partner."



ROUGH MOMENT — Herb Dolloson of Bolling AFB at Jacksonville, Fla., is jolted by right from Bill O'Bannion in their featherweight fight during Olympic trials in New York. Dolloson recovered and went on to score a second round KO of O'Bannion, from the Naval Air Squadron at Louisville, Ky. Olympic trials were held at World's Fair site where pickets had chanted at President Johnson on opening day of Fair. The trials were designed to choose the best fighters to send to the Olympic games this year in Tokyo. Last Olympics a young Louisvillian named Cassius Clay took a medal in boxing. (AP Wirephoto)

Nation's Cycle Competitors To Vie For Reading Mark

READING — Many of the nation's best competition riders will take aim on the Reading Fairgrounds' 10-lap record on Sunday afternoon in the first Holiday Classic AMA-sanctioned motorcycle racing program.

The current record is 4:29.00 and was set by Bart Markel in winning this spring's Huber Memorial race.

Time trials will start at one o'clock and will be followed by nine competitive races. They will include a pair of six-lap heats for the novice riders and a 10-lap final. Amateurs face the same routine and then the experts will go in two six-lap heats and the first 10-lap Holiday Classic.

Bidding for a new speed mark will be Dick Hammer, two-time 250 cc combine champion from Lakewood, Calif.; Roger Reiman, winner of the 200-mile national at Daytona Beach, Fla.; hard-riding Tony Murgula; Darell Dovel, Gary Nixon, Jimmy Varnes, the 1963 100-mile Canadian champion and a host of others.

Race Director Jack Vanino said more than 100 entries had been received for the program and 20 of them are in the expert class.

Top amateurs and willing and eager novices assure plenty of action on the lightning-fast half-mile speed oval.

Win Or Retire, Patterson Says

NEW YORK (AP) — Floyd Patterson, former heavyweight champion, said Tuesday night he will retire from the ring if he is badly beaten by Eddie Machen in their fight in Stockholm, Sweden on July 5.

The fighter made the announcement at Kennedy Airport prior to boarding a plane for Stockholm.

He said that by losing badly he meant either being knocked out or taking severe punishment in losing a decision.

When Hank Bauer, present Baltimore coach, played for the Yankees, he hit safely in 17 straight World Series games.

Acme Hose To Hold Services

EAST STROUDSBURG — Members of Acme Hose Co. of East Stroudsburg will hold annual memorial services at the graveside of Ernest Swetlin Saturday at 9 a.m.

Swetlin, a member of the fire company, was killed in World War I.

Services are being held one hour earlier this year to enable firemen and their families to attend the memorial services and participate in the community services later.

Firemen are urged to meet at the firehouse to pick up uniforms at 8 a.m.

Flag Week

HARRISBURG (AP) — Gov. Scranton this week designated the week of June 14-20 as Flag Week in Pennsylvania. He urged "all Pennsylvanians" to display the United States flag during that time.

Clean Stream Plan Proposed

HARRISBURG (AP) — Rep. Lee A. Donaldson, R-Allegheny, this week proposed a legislative investigation of enforcement of the clean streams program by the State Sanitary Water Board.

He introduced a resolution calling for a study "of laxity on the part of the Sanitary Water Board" by the joint state-government commission. The new resolution goes further in asking the legislative's research arm to make the survey.

The resolution said he found the "laxity" particularly apparent in strip mining areas of Butler and Venango counties.

Bangor School Head Rates System High

By JIM SHAFER
Slate Belt-West End Reporter

BANGOR — Dr. S. William Ricker, new superintendent of Bangor Area Schools, is proud of the jointure's system and rates it high among the nation's educational plants.

Dr. Ricker came to the Slate Belt community this year from Lancaster where he was principal of the junior high school.

"That may sound like it doesn't mean much. But that was a school with more than 1,200 pupils and a staff of some 55 teachers. So the move to this district was comparable," he said.

One of his early comments about the Bangor district was, "When I came here I found a good educational system and I feel that Donald B. Keat should be congratulated for his work."

Keat retired as superintendent last year.

Ricker continued, "I am very fortunate to follow a man like Keat. He has been a great help to me. He has never once refused or shunned me when I have asked him for help. He has always been willing to lend a hand."

Ricker is no stranger to the area. His home is in Easton, that is he originated from Easton. He attended East Stroudsburg State Teachers College for four years and graduated in 1947.

"I started in 1939 then came the war (World War II) and I, like many others, did a little traveling at the convenience and expense of the United States government and returned in 1946 to pick up where I left off at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College (now East Stroudsburg State College)," he continued.

Picked Up Master's

"I started working on my master's degree and received it in 1952. In 1955 I was awarded my doctorate, both of these degrees are from the Pennsylvania State University," he said.

"When I came here I had no pre-conceived ideas for a series of goals to accomplish," he said when questioned if he had any goals and how many of them he had reached.

He continued, "This is my first year here and I figure it takes about one year to learn what has been going on, what is going on and to lay foundations for what you want in the future.

Can Be Improved

"As I have said, the system here is a good one, but like anything good it can be improved and that is what we will do. Now don't misunderstand that statement. We will make the changes as we go along and when the time is right. The main idea is to provide the students with the very best.

"I have set up what I call an advisory committee. This includes the principal of all the schools and those in the special lines. We meet weekly to discuss problems of immediate attention and then move on to proposals for the future, be they next week, next month or next year.

"I try to operate in a democratic way but at the same time the operation is autocratic.

"One of the proposals we are working on is a complete program study from kindergarten through grade 12. This will be completed in the near future."

Ricker moved into the Slate Belt area shortly after assuming his new position. He, with his wife and two daughters, live near Myers Crossing, Washington Twp.

NEW SUPERINTENDENT — Dr. S. William Ricker heads schools in the Bangor Area District. He plans no big changes this year but changes are planned in the future.

Tall Cedars Plan Trip To World's Fair

STROUDSBURG — An excursion to the Worlds Fair in New York City is planned by the Tall Cedars of Lebanon, Pocono Forest 124 of Stroudsburg.

William Miller, co-chairman of the trip, last night said the buses will leave Stroudsburg Sunday, June 21, at 7 a.m. There will be pickup stations at the Giant Market parking lot in Arlington Heights and the Erie - Lackawanna Railroad station in East Stroudsburg.

He urges all wishing to make the trip to make reservation with either himself or Elwood Smith, or if someone desires additional information to contact them.

Dismissal Resolution

HARRISBURG (AP) — A House resolution introduced this week by three Luzerne County Democrats calls for the dismissal of Dr. H. Beecher Charmbury, secretary of mines, as being unqualified.

The resolution, referred to the rules committee, claims that Charmbury "fails to meet the minimum requirements under the Pennsylvania mining laws."

Majority Leader Kenneth B. Lee, rules committee chairman, said the resolution will never get out of committee. "It doesn't stand a chance," he said.

Sponsors of the move were Reps. Stanley A. Mehokick, William B. Curwood and Fred Shupnik. They were unavilable for comment on reasons behind the move.

Charmbury, 49, is a graduate of Gettysburg College, the University of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania State University.

He has been a member of the Penn State faculty since 1937 and has served since 1953 as the chairman of the university's department of mineral preparation, a position he still holds.

His biography says he has served as a mining consultant to more than 40 firms and municipalities and has written 50 articles on mining. He is listed in Who's Who in Education and Who's Who in Engineering.

Toll Cut

HARISBURG (AP) — The Public Utility Commission authorized Tuesday elimination of a 20 cent telephone toll between Allentown and New Tripoli in Lehigh County, effective June 21. The move will save 48,400 subscribers in the Bell Telephone Co.'s Allentown exchange some $7,500 annually, and 450 subscribers in the New Tripoli exchange of the Lycoming Telephone Co., Pine Grove, will benefit by $5,300.

Youth Plans Killing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A 17-year-old boy, serving a three-month term for arson and intoxication, was accused this week of plotting the murder of an official of the juvenile home where he is imprisoned.

Authorities of Pennypack House, juvenile wing of the house of correction said they found a letter written by David Weston describing how and when the killing could be done.

The letter had been hidden behind a cot in Weston's cell.

Dr. Leonard Rosengarten director of the Philadelphia Couty court's juvenile division said Weston planned to smuggle the letter out.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Thursday, May 28, 1964

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Don't be overly aggressive now. Hassles, useless, time-consuming disputes could mar the day. Keep your head above any such troubling waters.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) Single-handedly you can institute improvement in many areas; bolster self-confidence; tie up loose ends. Minor matters may tend to disturb -- don't let them.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — March progressively with the doers, and capitalize on the Gemini's subtle sense of humor. Your knowledge of human nature and ability to transcend the ordinary will raise your status.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Planetary aspects suggest precautions against willful errors, intemperate acts and thinking. Stress the Cancerian's innate common sense and amenability.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You may gain more ground than many today, but may also be held back on occasion because others are feling more pressure, opposition.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Some people and matters may react in a manner not fully anticipated. Do not let things throw you off balance or ruin your innately serene disposition.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Bag that prize — but with your Sign's usual integrity and forthright effort. Stabilize personal relationships; strengthen the peacekeeper's role.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — You can be very thrifty, or too extravagant; can indulge other extremes, also, if not alert to this tendency now. Look for that "middle road" and stick to it.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — You have an exceptionally good planetary setup now, but, nevertheless, must stiffen the line in order to avoid friction with those who are not in so comfortable a position.

December 23 to January 20 (Capricorn) — If there is no precedent or directive, be careful not to act impulsively on new projects. In routine tasks, be prompt and particular but not hasty.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Be sure that those whom you are trying to emulate have real substance, forthright qualities. Others will be following YOUR say-so, so say it softly and well.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Better-than-average influences under which to work out measures for new advances and closer understanding with superiors and co-workers. You should do well now.

YOU BORN TODAY are appreciative of opportunity, can grasp it and make an excellent showing where many would by-pass or do only the ordinary. You are always willing to give time, energy and other assets for worthwhile achievement. Normally you people attain real stature in life, and help others to a bountiful measure of happiness along the way. You can plan wonderful projects yet lose interest in them before they are completed. Travel, enthusiastic companions, religion, children and unusual projects lift your morale, spur your incentive. This is a date section, and an artistic-practical one. Don't scatter your energies, however. Birthdate of: Thos. Moore, Ir. poet; The Dionne Quintuplets of Canada; Wm. Pitt, Eng. statesman.

Your Heart Has 10 Lives--10

Man's Artery Problems Keep Piling Up

By Alton Blakeslee
And Jeremiah Stamler, M.D.

The rusting disease of men's arteries piles up bit by bit.

Special warning flags begin flying when a man is 25 to 30, when he is optimistically certain he has an inexhaustible plentitude of days and years ahead to spend or waste and enjoy.

Others come when he's 50 to 60, when life still is sweet, when there's a vintage of years to savor, and so much still to be done.

Dr. Paul Dudley White divides man's life into five ages, reaching ultimately perhaps to a full century.

The first age is from birth to 20, when nowadays the main hazards in life for U.S. children are accidents and poisons.

The second spans the years 20 to 40, and these are "the critical years for countless numbers of men who look so healthy, in whom this process of atherosclerosis begins to be laid down. The average man in America settles down at about 25 to a life of physical indolence although often with great nervous activity in his profession or business."

In the third age, 40 to 60, the hazards tolerated earlier begin to ripen into heart attacks and strokes.

But there is an antidote, through "middle-aged fitness," Dr. White declares. And "w we do from 40 to 60 will decide what will happen '- us" in the next two ages — 60 to 80, and then 80 and beyond.

Young men are not immune from heart attacks. By age 25, their arteries contain deposits of cholesterol and fats.

Coronary artery disease takes about one in 12 of all Americans who die between the ages of 25 and 34, and almost one in four of all those whose lives end between 35 and 44.

A first potential danger period comes when our physical growth ends and the need for food declines, but the old habit of high food intake continues.

After schooling, most young men drop out of team sports, and few have jobs calling for heavy work. These are also the years when the smoking habit becomes fixed, so that our man acquires the grim triad so common among us — eating too richly and too much, sitting too much and exercising too little, and smoking too heavily.

A second danger point comes with marriage, when many young men not only begin to eat better but as husbands and fathers lack time or money to continue regular exercise.

Take-home pay rises with promotions and seniority, but take-home poundage can also creep up if less call is put upon muscular energy and more is put on brain power and decision making. Labor - saving tools and devices are very fine, but what do you do with the savings?

Many young men gain weight most rapidly in their 20's and 30's. Half of American men are able weight when they are only 30 years old. One-fourth add 20 at least 10 per cent over desirper cent to the pounds they were carrying when first able to vote.

With youthful years being a time of general good health, most young men never seek a physical checkup or readings on blood pressure, blood cholesterol, or incipient diabetes.

With time, the young men's 40th or 50th birthday anniversaries come along. This is a time of far graver average risk of heart attacks, unless they have lived sensibly.

More danger flags begin flapping at this time.

One such flag is resignation to the idea that a heart attack is inevitable sooner or later because of hereditary susceptibility. While we may inherit some susceptibilities to high blood pressure or high cholesterol, or diabetes, the outcome depends upon how we live to give them chances to be effective—or to blunt thes- '-ks.

"Risks? My life is full of risks. I can't avoid them," says one middle-aged man. He is right, but this same man provides insurance against risks such as fire and automobile accidents.

By middle age, most men have gained weight, lengthening belt spans at heavy risk of reducing life spans.

Carrying this extra weight around might be considered a bit of exercise in a way, Dr. White remarks, though it's a bit hard to bend down. The fat under the skin is not the real problem — it's the few ounces of fat accumulating in dangerous places in the arteries.

Middle-Age Fitness

In the third stage of life, he adds, "much of the desease that has been slowly building up becomes apparent by symptoms, signs, or sudden death."

Health at this time becomes largely dependent upon what happened—not in childhood—but in the years 20 to 40. Besides physical fitness in childhood, Dr. White urges physical fitness in middle-age.

You can eat heartily on a diet lower in saturated fats and cholesterol, without overdoing on calories, and you can lose weight thereby.

You can seek better physical condition, recovering the young feeling of being fit, alert and vigorous. But, of course, don't rush off into some sudden and intense change of habits.

You can work gradually, at activities you like, to restore the verve and endurance you once had, and the sense of physical well being, and aid your arteries and your heart in the process. The key is to start a new habit that undermines and replaces the old deadly habit of life.

"We seem to delight in the absurd belief that we must avoid strains, either physical or mental, that we must pamper ourselves and not walk upstairs or work physically hard or mentally either—whereas on occasion the midnight oil shoud be burned," Dr. White says.

Early retirement, too short a week at work, and other seemingly wonderful attracions may penalize our arteries unless we are careful, he and others warn.

Many intelligent men in all walks of life "think nothing of continuing in their 70's to row, play tennis, climb mountains or walk many miles daily. And they continue to be more mentally a-rt than if they were sitting in a- armchair waiting for an e- to their retirement in life."

"Operator, I need to make 339 emergency calls!"

On Saturday, 340 people had had a fine time at the church dance.

On Tuesday, one of them came down with spinal meningitis.

The dance co-chairman explained to the telephone operator how important it was to warn the others to see their doctors right away. Other operators in the Levittown area were quickly enlisted and, working as a team with the co-chairman, soon reached all those who had attended the dance. Without the help of the operators "we never would have succeeded," reported the co-chairman.

Going out of their way to help is a tradition among telephone people. This true story is one small example. Whenever you pick up your phone, "The Spirit of Service" is there.
